LODGE ASKS AID OF CRANE

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge to-day turned over his fight for re-election to the United States Senate to Senator W. Murray Crane, who is recognized as the great padicator of the Republican party of the United States.

This abdication on the part of Lodge in favor of Crane placed the senior Senator's fight in Massachusetts in the forefront as a national issue of the G. O. P.

The managers of the Republican party regard the outcome of the Massachusetts senatorial fight as the most important crisis in the history of Republicanism. Crane's action followed a long talk with Roosevelt in New York and wireless communication with President Taft.

Lodge has been advised to fight to the last ditch. After Senator Murray Crane had conferred with Lodge to-day he made this statement:

"Lodge Will Fight to Last."

"The grim, gray Senator will fight to the last ditch and has no apology to make."

This declaration of war was made to a friend of the two Senators.

Crane came from Dalton early to-day to the Touraine. He had been in New York. Crane and Lodge had both seen Roosevelt. They discussed the entire situation. They communicated with Taft. Taft told them that he was willing to do anything in his power to help out the situation. The offer of the Ambassadorship to the Court of St. James was suggested by Taft. Lodge would not consider it.

Lodge took a firm stand for being returned to the United States Senate. Then it was arranged that Crane should take charge of the fight.

Conference with Whitney.

Before Lodge and Crane met at the Touraine Lodge had a three-hours conference with William Whitman, who is president of the Woolen Manufacturers' Association and one of the most prominent high protectionists of the United States.

It was presumed that Mr. Whitman urged Senator Lodge to stand by his colors, and that Lodge conveyed this information to Crane, because it was after this that Crane issued his ultimatum that Crane was in the fight "to the last ditch."

From to-day on the job of pacifying the fourteen insurgent Republicans in the Legislature is in the hands of Crane. As the Republican party regards it, if Crane cannot save the situation, no one can.

In the meantime Democratic Boss declares that Lodge must go and that he proposes to bring the whole issue before the people of the State and let them decide who is to be Lodge's successor.

When the Governor-elect reached his office to-day he found more than 100 letters and telegrams awaiting him, all praising him for the stand he has taken against Lodge. One of the telegrams, which was from Hollywood, Cal., was as follows:

"All progressive, shrewd, and thinking people of California and of all other States, regardless of party affiliations, will heartily

SUFFRAGETTES MOB ASQUITH

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Premier Asquith was mobbed and struck in the face by suffragettes in Downing street after leaving the Parliament Building this afternoon.

He was rescued by policemen and placed in a taxicab. One of the women rammed her fist through the glass before the cab could get under way. When it started the suffragettes followed it, calling "coward" and other harsh epithets.

The attack was part of a demonstration which the suffragettes had made following the announcement in Parliament by Asquith that if the present government were in power following the general elections he would introduce a bill enfranchising women. He said that the bill would be so broad as to admit of many amendments.

MORE AIR IN THE CARS.

A resolution providing for the inspection of the ventilating system in street cars running in Newton has been introduced in the Newton Board of Aldermen by Thomas Lynne. He says that the city is spending thousands to make the roads better for which folk in autos, and feels that conditions should be improved for the other classes in the cars.

CRIPPEN CHEERFUL TO LAST

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Dr. H. H. Crippen has confessed that he is the murderer of Belle Elmore Crippen, his wife. The Evening Times prints the confession.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The death watch was to-day placed upon Dr. H. H. Crippen, whose life will be taken upon the gallows to-morrow in expiation of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen.

Although the American lived his last few hours to-day in the shadow of death he was cheery and smoked cigarettes with evident relish.

Hawley Harvey Crippen is to-day the enigma of Pentonville prison, just as he has been since his incarceration there after his conviction and sentence at New Bailey courthouse. He slept soundly last night and ate heartily to-day, just as the prison attaches expect he will sleep to-night and eat to-morrow morning.

However, despite his iron nerve, the coolness of the doctor has weakened since he did good-by to Ethel Clare LeNeve. His conference with Father Carville, the Catholic priest, who has been spiritual adviser, was the longest to-day in the long series of meetings they have held since Crippen was made a prisoner at Pentonville, days ago. As he was prisoner in Pentonville, Crippen has maintained a mysterious buoyancy, as though he expected his supposed dead wife suddenly to appear at the court to grant him a reprieve.

Worried Only at Times.

At times he has shown sorrowful, but these fits of depression were only temporary. The course of Crippen's composure is a mystery to those about him.

He sleeps well, grins merrily and has an unimpaired appetite. As regards his food the prisoner is very careful and has specially written out diagrams for the preparation of his meals.

Pentonville prison is in a district of Islington which the name Pentonville was stretched to cover. This is one of England's best model prisons and was so called after its erection in the early 40's. The prison houses 820 prisoners, but there have been no men behind its walls who have attracted international attention or aroused the authorities at the institution as the diminutive American doctor. Students of crime and criminology unite in declaring Crippen one of the queerest prisoners ever confined there.

There is a big theory in the prison and the condemned man has been given free run of it. He has turned an omnivorous reader, although his taste has gradually changed from a liking for light fiction and love stories to more staid works and even books on theology. To-day he was barred from reading.

Mail for the Prisoner.

In the afternoon the doctor has attended to his correspondence for fourteen hours in the office of the warden there is a big bundle of mail which the authorities have thought best not to show to the prisoner. These letters are from all parts of the world and they condemn Crippen in the harshest terms. Some of them are positively brutal while others are profane and uncalled for. The letters sympathizing and condoning with him have been given to Crippen as they arrive.

Crippen has never given the prison authorities any trouble and consequently he has been granted liberties not always extended to condemned prisoners. Visiting privileges of unusual nature have been extended in his case. Among those who have sought interviews with Crippen are many cranks some of whom claimed relationship with him.

A gentle sadness has fallen upon the prisoner to-day following Ethel LeNeve's last visit yesterday. Upon previous occasions when she visited the prison, Crippen, in the presence of two warders, discussed her future with her.

"I have left you everything, making Arthur Newton my executor," declared the doctor. "It isn't much but it will help you some. Reconcile yourself to conditions no matter how sad they are. Be a good girl."

Wife's Property Held.

The furs and jewels which formerly belonged to Belle Elmore but which legally belonged to Crippen upon the death of Belle are in the hands of the police and legal application must be made to obtain them. Practically all the household goods and property was liquidated to provide money for his lawyers.

The scaffold upon which Crippen will swing to death to-morrow was erected today in the prison courtyard, and little by little the tiny plot where the bodies of the twelve men executed there lie is being disturbed.

If he had listened intently to-day the condemned man might have heard the pounding of the workmen as they built the gruesome structure upon which he will meet his doom.

Although the graveyard is near the gallows, Crippen will not be aware of the fact, for there are no gravestones, and little tablets upon them outside prison wall bearing the initials of the dead and date of their execution are the only indications of the cemetery.

MAYOR WILL SIGN MERGER ORDINANCE

Mayor Fitzgerald to-day said that he was ready to sign the new Public Works consolidation ordinance as soon as it had been smoothed out. While the ordinance was adopted a week ago Monday by the City Council the fact that nothing has been heard of it led to the belief that the Mayor might balk on the measure. "I am going to sign the ordinance," he said, "and I suppose that it is the chief point that the people are interested in. The ordinance has not yet been presented to me, and I will not have to act on it until fifteen days have elapsed from its presentation. It is now being worked over by Corporation Counsel Babson and Mr. Bourke and other authorities."

WALKER ROUTS STANDPATTERS

Speaker Joseph Walker has routed the stand-patters in the House Market Club on the question of supporting the revision downward policy of President Taft. Speaker Walker gave out the figures of his postal card canvass to-day, which show that he wins in the House Market Club by a vote of 206 to 77 and that against some of the staunchest high tariff chiefs in the United States.

The post card canvass which has been conducted by Speaker Walker invited members of the club to express their opinion of his resolution sustaining the President in his tariff policy.

When the resolution was originally introduced at the last meeting of the House Market Club it was defeated by a vote of 40 to 8. The resolution committed the club to the support of President Taft in his plan for scientific revision of the tariff, schedule by schedule, when rates under the existing law after impartial investigation shall have been found to be wrong.

Figures of New Poll.

Speaker Walker contended that the vote of the club on the matter at the meeting was not representative and the result of the post card canvass of all the members bears out his contention.

Here are the figures:

Whole number of votes cast to date	313
Those voting in favor of Walker resolution	206
Those opposed	77

Speaker Walker, commenting on the result, said:

"It will be seen that about one-third of the members of the club have voted. I regret that all did not express themselves."

Essentials of Taft Program.

"There are two essential parts to the Taft program on the tariff," continued Mr. Walker. "First, the investigation, and second, the amendment of the tariff in such particulars as it is found by such investigation to be wrong without awaiting general revision of the tariff. Of what avail is it to accept the first part and not the second part?

"The House Market club, by its resolution, now accepts the first part, viz., the investigation, but, by its rejection of my resolution at the annual meeting the club refused to accept the second and most vital part, viz., the correction of errors when proved, without another general revision of the tariff. It is here that the resolutions differ.

"I am glad to say that a large proportion of the club has been willing to come out squarely and stand with the President in his sound, reasonable and far-sighted policy. This policy would protect the industries of all tariffs and agreements between protected interests, but based on the principle of reasonable prosperity and fairly applied. It would assure rates which are adequate and not excessive, fair and not favorable to any special interest. It is the really conservative policy, and in the end is bound to prevail."

KELIHER'S CASE IS POSTPONED

The sentencing of William J. "Big Bill" Keliher, convicted of complicity with George W. Coleman in wrecking the National City Bank of Cambridge, was postponed again to-day when the Government failed to approve the amended bill of exceptions taken at Keliher's trial and filed by his counsel Harvey H. Pratt.

Mr. Pratt and Assistant United States District Attorney Garland appeared before Judge Hale in the Circuit Court to-day and said that they were not ready to go on with the case. Mr. Garland announced that the Government did not approve of the bill of exceptions. The case was postponed until the week after next as Judge Hale will not be in Boston next week.

The time elapsing between now and the new date set for arguing the exceptions is to be used by both sides in endeavoring to agree on the bill of exceptions. The hearing will be held yesterday, contained many suggestions that the Government proposed yet was not satisfactory to them.

Question of Defense.

The question on which the two sides conflict is in regard to the testimony of George W. Coleman. The defense argues that his testimony is not competent because they allege that he is a felon in support of this they have inserted in their bill of exceptions the entire testimony of one Flaherty, who had according to his own story, secured himself in a close relationship with Coleman while the latter was in jail. They argue that his testimony at large is valueless.

Assistant District Attorney Garland objects that such testimony has no place in the bill. He holds that Coleman's credibility as a witness was decided by the jury and furthermore that his credibility was not in question. He also argues that the competency of his testimony is an issue.

Why Sentence Is Delayed.

Had the amended bill of exceptions been approved by the Government to-day it would have moved that Keliher be sentenced immediately. This would be the natural procedure in order that the defense might look for a writ of error. The case would go to the Circuit Court of Appeals although the writ of error and the writ of error cannot be granted until Keliher has been sentenced.

Following their appearance before Judge Hale, Mr. Garland and Mr. Pratt were in conference regarding the exceptions. They will probably agree before the week is out. The bill of exceptions will then be argued until approved by the Government.

1,000 NATIVES LOSE LIVES IN FLOODS

LONDON, Nov. 22.—A dispatch from Saigon, French Indo-China, reports that 1,000 natives have been killed by floods in Annam province around Kwang-Nazal.

BOY KILLED BY FOOTBALL GAME

LEBANON, Ky., Nov. 22.—Clarence Hill, twelve years of age, died here today from injuries received in a football game.

HUNDREDS ARE KILLED IN BATTLE

Many Towns Taken by Revolutionists as They Sweep Southward.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 23.—The Mexican revolution is sweeping revolution like wild fire toward the capital, according to dispatches received here to-day.

The rebels are operating in force within 100 miles of Mexico City, and are fighting and spreading their propaganda throughout a vast territory, extending fanwise from there clear up to the Rio Grande.

Seven different States are more or less in revolution to-day.

The rebels are in control of the town of San Antonio, San Andres, Torreon, Bach, Minaca, Encantillas, Guerrero and all the surrounding territory in the State of Chihuahua.

Martial law was proclaimed in Chihuahua, according to late reports.

One Thousand Fall in Battle.

More than 1,000 men and women have been killed and wounded in fighting about the towns of Parral, Torreon, Gomez Palacio, Durango and Pueblo, according to the same report. This is conservative estimate; other reports of less definite character make the losses five times as big.

As a result of the Mexican government commandeering private telegraph wires and placing the most rigid censorship to-day upon all dispatches being sent from Mexico City, the details of the fighting last night and early to-day were slow in arriving.

Senor Cosio, Minister of War, to-day sent large detachments to prevent the Yaqui Indians from joining the rebels. The Yaquis are the most savage tribe of Indians existing and have always been known in the ode of Mexican peace. The territory in which they live is wild and rugged and constantly patrolled by rurales.

Nineteen Deserters Executed.

Treason in the Mexican army will be resolved by the Mexican government with no iron hand. News received here to-day that nineteen officers and privates of one of the regular regiments at Oaxaca were arrested and immediately executed in the military prison there on November 7.

The executions followed wholesale desertions from the ranks of the federal troops to the insurgents. A late report says that fighting is still going on at Torreon, where the revolutionists are being aided by 3000 federal troops who have deserted.

Three hundred Mexican revolutionists stormed the jail at Acambaro in the State of Guanajuato early to-day, freed the prisoners and then looted the town. In the midst of their depredations they were met by troops and in the fight twenty-seven were killed and ninety wounded.

The revolutionists have fled to the mountains with the soldiers in pursuit. They carried with them a large sum of money, which they got in looting the loan shops and municipal palaces. At the latter place they seized all the county funds.

United States troops are patrolling the border to preserve the neutrality laws. Troop K, Third United States Cavalry, returned to-day from Fort Sam Houston. The soldiers are equipped with ammunition and rations for a long stay. Troop L, of the Third Cavalry, is rushing to Eagle Pass from San Antonio. While it is believed that these two troops will be able to patrol the border other soldiers are held in readiness for call.

Skirmishes have been fought along the northern provincial railroads in the last

SHOPLIFTER SENTENCED.

Charged with shoplifting, Virginia Wentworth, forty years old, of Brookline, was to-day arraigned in the Municipal Court and sent to Sherborn for four months. She appealed and was held in $300.

BULLETINS.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 22.—Parral was captured to-day by the revolutionists after a battle that lasted all night. Thirty of the garrison were killed.

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 22.—A trainload of American refugees reached here to-day, the passengers coming from Torreon, Chihuahua, Gomez Palacio, Parral and other Mexican points. They declared that it is no longer safe for Americans to go into Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—American Consul Ellsworth at Ciudad Porfirio Diaz notified the State Department to-day that the Mexican troops had captured Gomez Palacio after the revolutionists had released all the prisoners. Consul Freeman at Durango reported that several persons had been killed, but no Americans had been molested.

SABINAS, Mexico, Nov. 22.—The towns of Durango, Villardena, Lerdo and San Luis are reported to have surrendered to revolutionists.

GENERAL ALARM FOR SALEM FIRE

SALEM, Nov. 22.—A general alarm was sounded for a fire which started in a three-story wooden factory on Derby street, opposite Salem Hospital, to-day. The entire department responded. After a lively struggle with the flames the fire was confined to the block where it started. It was feared that the fire would spread, not only to the hospital, but to several other wooden buildings nearby.

The fire started at 7.30 in the rear part of the Lafayette laundry on the ground floor. It swept up into the premises of the Salem Box Company on the second floor and was held at the third floor, which is occupied by Mayo Bros. furniture manufacturers. The loss on the building, owned by the New England Investment Company, was $2,000. Other losses amounted to $3,000.

HUNTS WIN SUIT OVER TACK IN MEAT

If a butcher sells a piece of meat containing a foreign substance such as piece of wire and the customer who buys the meat is injured by contact with the foreign substance the butcher is liable and must pay damages. This is the substance of a decision to-day by the full bench of the supreme Court in overruling the defendant's exceptions in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Hunt of Boston, against Rhodes Brothers. Mrs. Hunt sued for $5,000 on account of injuries received by a bit of tack in the meat. While Mrs. Hunt was eating the meat a tack flew in her hand was cut by a tack and blood poisoning resulted. For judgment for damages of $662 for the Hunts and the full bench upholds the verdict.

NEW HIGH DYKE AT CHELSEA COMPLETED

With the assurance that a repetition of the Chelsea flood last Christmas was practically impossible, City Engineer James A. O'Brien of Chelsea, to-day notified the Board of Control that the new dyke had been completed and that the top was nine feet above the high water mark of last year. Engineer O'Brien plans to force a pontoon to the dyke during the night, as new dyke rises five feet above the ordinary high water mark.

STRICKEN IN BUYING THANKSGIVING DINNER

While buying his Thanksgiving dinner to-day, William F. Keller, sixty, of No. 44 Rogers avenue, Somerville, fell unconscious to the floor of the Manhattan market, on Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, and died in short time afterwards at the Cambridge Relief Hospital. Death was due to a hemorrhage of the brain.

PLAN TO INCREASE FIREMEN'S WAGES

A plan to boost the annual wages of all the Boston firemen $200 a year is now under consideration by certain members of the City Council.

1,000 FALL IN MEXICO BATTLE

twenty-four hours between revolutionists who were trying to dynamite the tracks and Rurales and other troops detailed to guard them. The revolutionists are also cutting wires.

Madero Gathers Army.

Somewhere on the mountain fastnesses, no one knows definitely where, Francesco Madero, head and front of the present revolution, is gathering his army, it is believed here. Madero's army is believed to be about 2,000 strong, although there is every likelihood that it is receiving constant recruits.

There was nothing definite in the information received today to substantiate the report that General Bernardo Reyes, a prominent exile from Mexico and an enemy of Diaz, is on his way into Mexico from France to lead an army against the Mexican regulars. However, no one doubts that Reyes sympathizes are with the rebels.

General Villar, Mexican commandant in the northern district, received orders today to proceed to the front of lower Chihuahua across the Rio Grande into Texas to begin military conscription in Mexico. Hundreds of them swarmed across the border during the night.

At Perral, Durango and Puebla the fighting was raging without organization, according to the details received from these cities. Men and women fought the police and troops, firing from their homes. Scores of arrests have been made, especially at Perral, where the police today said that the homes of the rebels had been found to contain great quantities of dynamite.

Steal Dynamite from Mines.

Many of the male residents of Parral are miners and the police declare that they have been stealing dynamite from the mines and secreting it, to be made into bombs, for many weeks.

The utmost among the troops gives a serious aspect to the government's position. Reports from across the border today declared the number of desertions both men and officers at between 300 and 500. This has resulted in a shakedown posted in all the barracks reminding the men of their oath of loyalty. Arms have been taken away from others by the rurales until in all it is believed that over 1,200 soldiers are at present disarmed.

Strangers from the mining belt across the border declare that American interests have suffered greatly from the insurrection. Sheep, cattle and horses have been stolen from American-owned ranches to feed the revolutionists and explosives seized from mines.

It is said that in the mountain country many of the American-owned mines have been compelled to close down because all the Mexican workmen have deserted their posts. There is bitter feeling against Americans in Mexico.

Fighting is said to have been renewed at Puebla and more troops are being rushed there. The Tenth Regiment of regular infantry was rushed from here to Orizaba by special train. General Luque, who put down the recent uprising in Yucatan, has been placed in command and it is announced he was reinforced by two companies of infantry which took part in the recent fighting at Puebla, where more than 150 persons were killed.

President Diaz has taken personal charge of the situation and is planning the most drastic measures to quell the uprising. It is overlooking no detail that will tend to restore order and crush the conspiracy against the government. It is evident he regards the outlook as serious, as he has summoned Alex President Corral from Tehuacan, where he has been taking the baths because of his health.

Regulars Win Fight.

Later reports from Gomez Palacio are that the revolutionists in large numbers attacked and captured the town. During the fighting the Government troops were driven out, but later they were reinforced, and under Colonel Ismael Zuniga attacked the town in turn, driving out the insurgents and chasing them into the mountains. Many were killed and wounded on both sides.

MOSQUITOES CAMP ON LINER

The Italian liner Lazio, from Mediterranean ports, docked today with 305 passengers suffering from bites inflicted on them by a swarm of mosquitoes which swooped upon the vessel in mid ocean.

The Lazio came to quarantine late yesterday. Dr. Guy thought the passengers were suffering from smallpox, true for on them on their hands, arms and faces small hard "papules," as they are called, which are like the eruptions symptoms of smallpox.

Dr. Guy was told about the mosquitoes, as on the hour was late and the ship sailing he did not dare release the Lazio from quarantine in the face of the suspicious symptoms. To-day, in the light of daylight and he had time to investigate he story thoroughly, he became convinced that the extraordinary number of the Lazio's passengers was really due to mosquitoes.

The mosquito swarm descended on the decks of the Lazio ten days ago. They bit the passengers frightfully, especially the children. They invaded the staterooms and saloons, drove all passengers up on deck and made life unbearable for all. Many in the staterooms and saloons were dumfounded with sulphur which drove the "bugs" out again but killed them.

BISHOP SEROPIAN, ARMENIAN, HERE

Bishop Mesrobh Episcopo Seropian, head of the Armenian Church of Adana, Turkey, who took a prominent part in the affairs of the Armenians in Adana, at the time of the massacres there several years ago, arrived in Boston today on a month's visit to his people in this country. The bishop is staying at the Langham Hotel. He arrived in New York last Saturday from London. Bishop Seropian was one of the founders of the Armenian Benevolent Association in Turkey which has branches throughout the world. He is to settle the Turkish government refusing to permit him to set foot in his native land.

TWO POLICEMEN SHOT BY CHICAGO THUGS

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Two policemen were wounded today as a result of clashes with two bands of hold-up men in the police net on crime which has terrorized Chicago for the last three weeks. In that time more than a score of persons have been injured or wounded and nine have perished. The wounded officers are John Delaney and Raymond Cullen. Delaney was shot in two when he went to the rescue of Mrs. Anna Graves, who blew a police whistle from her front door. Cullen's aim being deflected the bullet fired at him and lodged in his thigh.

TRANS-MISSISSIPPI CONGRESS OPENED

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 22.—Six hundred delegates were present at the opening of the Trans-Mississippi commercial congress here today. Governor Thomas M. Campbell delivered the address of welcome and several of the visiting governors responded. New Orleans delegates have started a hot fight for the Panama exposition in 1915. Among the visitors are Governors Haskell of Oklahoma, Stubbs of Kansas, Saunders of Louisiana, Haskell of Oklahoma, Hadley of Missouri and Campbell of Texas.

$200 REWARD FOR ARREST OF THUGS

Fred Young, a chauffeur, is willing to pay $200 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the three men who assaulted him on the night of November 10 at Warren and Dudley streets. His friends, aroused because the police have been unable to arrest the guilty persons, have offered almost unlimited financial support if the guilty men can be found. Young is employed at the Percival garage in Roxbury. His face was broken and he was terribly beaten.

VERMONT DIVORCE UPHELD IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Supreme Court Justice Tompkins held that a Vermont decree of divorce is good in New York. The decision was made in the suit for divorce brought by Susan Van Wyck Benham against Wesley H. Benham. They were married Sept. 7, 1898, at Pittsfield, Mr. Benham in 1909 obtained a divorce in Vermont by default, in the absence of petition. Mr. Benham married again and is now living in Buffalo with his second wife.

GUNBOATS END TOUR AROUND THE WORLD

PORTSMOUTH, Nov. 22.—The United States gunboats Wheeling and Petrel have just arrived in the Portsmouth Navy Yard after completing a 28,200-mile journey from San Francisco around the globe by way of the Suez canal. The two gunboats are the smallest craft of any navy ever to make so long a trip, and the manner in which both weathered the heavy seas on the passage has caused favorable comment in naval circles. The journey may have been the last for either vessel, as the department at Washington is considering whether the boats should be repaired or be put out of commission and sold.

FAMILY CHEERS LE BLANC GIRL

Sixty witnesses in the trial of Hattie Le Blanc for the alleged murder of Clarence F. Glover, which begins in the East Cambridge Court next Monday, were called by the East Cambridge Court house yesterday and to-day, and were examined by District Attorney Higgins.

Recognized witnesses for the defence as well as those for the State were called, although the lawyers for the defence were not permitted to be present. The district attorney has the right, however, to question any one whom he wishes regarding the case.

Among those whom he saw were Hattie Le Blanc's two sisters, Irene and Lillian, and her four half sisters, Mrs. Thomas Davis, Mrs. William White, Mrs. Joseph Simpson and Mrs. William McKay, all of Gloucester.

Cheered by Family.

For the past few weeks this little family group of women have been momentarily expecting this summons, and all have been busily occupied in the preparation of little gifts with which to surprise and delight the heart of the youthful prisoner. Yesterday Hattie was the happy recipient of several boxes of candy, all kinds of fruits and a few girlish knickknacks.

The gift that gave her the most pleasure was a white lace Dutch collar, carefully selected by her sister, Irene, and which instantly became to Hattie's eyes a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

Hattie has also received a blue one-piece dress, and when it came from, and who sent it, is a mystery to both herself and her family. She has refused to be pressed her longing for a blue dress to wear at the time of her trial, but her sisters, dividing all knowledge of it and say that they would rather that Hattie did not accept such presents, unless the source can be made known to them.

Hattie Appears Happy.

Nevertheless, Hattie is supremely happy in the possession of a new frock, and now her one desire is to let her unknown benefactor know how grateful she is.

Members of her family say that Hattie has no doubt as to the outcome of her case, and she is confident that she will be free at the close of her trial. In a recent letter to her sister Irene she wrote:

"Don't worry a bit. I shall be home to eat Christmas dinner with mother."

Each time that her sisters visit her they return to their home cheered by Hattie's bright outlook for the future, and comforted by her unfailing optimism. She inquires after each member of the family, laughs at the anecdotes of her half-sister's children until they find their gloomy thoughts dispelled, and feel quite ready to take her own light-hearted view of the case.

Since Irene Le Blanc became Mrs. Joseph Langley she has resided with her husband at the home of his mother in Gloucester. This kind, the mother-in-law of Hattie, said today:

"We hope and pray for the best. It is all we can do. She is so young. So very young."

The daughter, a young girl of sixteen, said:

Letters Very Cheerful.

"Why her letters are just as cheerful as they can be. Irene always feels better after she gets one. Indeed, there is nothing said about them."

Then she spoke of the many presents that had been left in her care to be forwarded to Hattie, explaining, girlishly: "You see Hattie is very fond of pretty things."

Mr. Le Blanc, the father of the accused girl, will be near her during the trial, and will live with his present home will make his home with his son, Fred Le Blanc, a half-brother of Hattie, so that he may be nearer to East Cambridge and the grim building that shelters his little girl.

$1,249,570 NEWTON BUDGET IS PASSED

After a discussion lasting well into the evening, the Newton Board of Aldermen passed the annual budget. The total amount is $1,249,570.98, a decrease of $5,429.25 from last year. Appropriations asked by the various departments were cut in almost every case, by amounts ranging from $100 to $18,000. The total cut in all departments by Finance Committee, Mayor and Aldermen was $24,490. All the Aldermen voted for the budget as finally framed except Thomas Lyons, who believed that the Highway Department's appropriation should not have been cut.

Rats and Puffs the Style

Women who cover their heads with masses of false hair will in time have diseased scalps. Rats and puffs are dangerous as they collect germs, specific dust and germ-catchers. They exclude the air from the scalp, and the pressure on the delicate network of veins soon results in the loss of hair. A good thing to shampoo the head with is a neutral soap, combined with Glycerin, White of Eggs, Cocoanut Oil and Salicylic Acid. These are the ingredients Birt's Head Wash is made of. It removes every trace of dandruff and scales from the scalp and leaves the hair soft and glossy. 25c. and 50c. at drug and dept. stores.

CAPT. EMERSON SEEKS DIVORCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Captain Isaac E. Emerson of Baltimore, millionaire, owner of two steam yachts and several country estates and father of the recently divorced Mrs. Smith Hollins McKim, who has been reported engaged to Alfred G. Vanderbilt, will start for Reno shortly after Thanksgiving to begin suit for divorce. Yesterday it became known Captain Emerson and his wife separated definitely several days ago. She remained in her suite in the Waldorf-Astoria and he took up quarters in the New York Club, No. 20 West Fortieth street.

The millionaire left this city for Aiken, his winter place in South Carolina. With him went his only daughter, who was Margaret Emerson, and a party of friends who were invited to spend Thanksgiving in his residence. Mrs. Isaac Emerson remained in the Waldorf, but it was intimated she soon will start for the Emerson home in Baltimore. Her two daughters by a former marriage, Mrs. James McVicker and Mrs. W. W. White, spent most of the day in her apartments. Mrs. McKim's personal belongings were left with her mother and, it is understood, there is no friction between the couple and their respective children.

Refused to Be Interviewed.

Neither the millionaire nor his wife could be seen for an interview. From other sources, however, it was learned the actual separation probably took place in the Waldorf on Sunday. Captain Emerson and Mrs. Emerson were seen in the corridors of the hotel around noon conversing earnestly. The Commodore, as he is often called, appeared to be under a great nervous strain, and there were tears in his wife's eyes. The subject of their talk, of course, has not been ascertained, but the manner of each indicated it was of grave import. Emerson several times shook his head emphatically. His wife, on the other hand, was pleading, at times wistfully. Finally the millionaire turned abruptly and walked away.

A few minutes afterward Mrs. Emerson entered the Waldorf restaurant alone and had luncheon there with Mrs. "Alec" Brown, one of the most prominent women in Baltimore society, and a close friend of the Emerson family. Mrs. Emerson seemed flustered, and she ate little. Her conversation with Mrs. Brown was animated. After luncheon she went to her suite on the fourth floor of the hotel.

Mrs. McKim with Mother.

No callers were admitted except Mrs. Emerson's two older daughters, who arrived in the Waldorf on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. McKim, the third and youngest of the family, returned in the evening from a trip to visit friends in Irvington-on-Hudson, and spent the night with her mother.

Before Captain Emerson left the Waldorf he was seen conversing with another woman, whose identity could not be learned, but who is said to be intimately acquainted with both husband and wife. What the purport of this interview was could not be learned. Presumably, however, it was designed by Mrs. Emerson as a final attempt at reconciliation. If such was her hope, it was unsuccessful, for five minutes after-ward her husband was on his way to the New York Club. Mrs. Emerson, it was learned, called up the clubhouse by telephone several times in the afternoon, but each time Emerson refused to go to the telephone. Finally Mrs. "Daisy" McVicker, his stepdaughter, went to the club in her auto. Captain Emerson entered the car, and the two drove up Fifth avenue together. Mrs. McVicker, however, returned alone to the Waldorf.

An Absolute Break.

The most open act by Emerson which made it positive the couple separated was a letter which was sent from the New York Club in the evening, in his handwriting. It was addressed to "Mrs. Isaac Emerson, the Waldorf-Astoria." The fact that the envelope read "Mrs. Emilie Emerson" instead of Mrs. Isaac E. Emerson" left no doubt in the minds of those familiar with the situation that there had been an absolute break. Acquaintances of Captain Emerson in Baltimore say he never has used his wife's first name on a correspondence before.

That the millionaire will seek his freedom in Reno, the home of easy divorce, is regarded as certain. The house in which Mrs. McKim lived when she obtained a legal residence in Nevada prior to obtaining her divorce from Dr. Smith Hollins McKim, the Baltimore society physician, belongs to Emerson and stands in his name. Then, too, the divorce laws in Nevada are so convenient that a person can get a decree on grounds that would not even be considered by the Eastern courts.

What reason Captain Emerson will give for his desire to part from his wife after their thirty years under the yoke of wedlock is known. It is not expected any third person will be named.

Carolina White, Boston Singer, Wins Honors

Newcomer in American opera, formerly Miss White of Boston, who takes Mary Garden's place in new opera.

Will Be "The Girl" in New Opera, "The Girl of the Golden West."

Ten years ago—

A pretty Brighton girl of sixteen so impressed her piano teacher with her singing that the piano teacher wanted all his friends to hear her—all, at least, who might be of service to her.

Weldon Hunt, who had just returned from Europe, and who was about to open his studio in Steinert Hall, was one of the friends of the piano teacher. Hunt went out to Brighton one day and heard the pretty girl of sixteen.

Now—

Carolina White, whose American debut at Chicago has been chronicled followed by her acclaim as the most wonderful of prima donnas, and who is described as one of the handsomest women on the stage, has been selected to create the part of "The Girl," in Puccini's "The Girl of the Golden West."

The newest star in the operatic firmament is the daughter of James E. White, of No. 143 Walnut street, Newtonville. Mr. White is the Boston representative of several New York houses in the dry goods trade. His offices are in Summer street.

Discovered by Mr. Hunt.

"Of course we are very proud of Carolina," her father said yesterday, "and, of course, we have read of her great success in Chicago, which we expected. It was Weldon Hunt, with whom all Carolina's American work was done. It was Mr. Hunt who discovered her voice. It was he who developed and prepared her for her studies abroad. It was Mr. Hunt who, with Mrs. Hunt, took her abroad. See Mr. Hunt."

Weldon Hunt recalled his first visit to the home of the Whites, who then lived in Brighton. "That was ten years ago," he said, "when Miss White was a pupil in the High School. I went out to her home one day, at the suggestion of a friend, and heard her sing. I don't remember what it was, some trifle or other, but the voice!

"I waited until the child had left the room before I told her parents. Mrs. White was then living what I thought of their daughter's voice and her possible future.

"As Mr. White told you, all of Miss White's work in America was done with me. I had just come back from Europe myself, I had sung in grand opera, my bodily health was not quite up to the demands of the work and the hearing and I was with me for four years. Then we decided—Mrs. Hunt and I—that she was ready to go abroad.

"We placed her, three years ago, with Sebastiani at Naples, to my mind the greatest of Italian teachers. She remained with Sebastiani for one year. Then she made her debut at the great San Carlo Opera House at Naples, in 'Aida.'

"For two seasons since that time, she has been tremendously successful in many of the great opera houses of Europe, at Genoa, Venice, Milan, Rovigo, Lucerne and Ostend.

"Now she is in Chicago and through her instantaneous and great success there has been engaged for ten weeks in that city, ten weeks in Philadelphia, two weeks at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York and two weeks in Baltimore.

"Her opening in Chicago was as 'Santuzza,' in 'Cavalleria Rusticana.' She sang twice last week, achieving greater success that Saturday afternoon in 'Aida.' Now comes the news that she has been chosen to create 'The Girl' in the Puccini opera, a distinction originally sought for Mary Garden."

Mr. Hunt modestly takes not little credit for the discovery and development of the new star.

"The reason why failure and disaster have been the part of so many American singers," he said, "is that they do not get to the proper teachers early enough and under the right circumstances. In the case of Carolina White nothing was left to chance. Mrs. Hunt and I went over with her, placed her with Sebastiani at Naples, and there we left her for three months. We did not leave her until we were perfectly satisfied that everything was right.

"Mr. White and Miss White have a right to be proud of her great success. I have never known of another such success with in so short a time. But first of all there was a voice."

SYMPHONY HAS A WEE HAT WORRY

Not many days ago it was the big hats caused worry to Major Fitzgerald and the management of Symphony Hall. Now it's the reverse, for a wee small bonnet threatens to again embroil the Mayor and the Symphony.

Last week the Mayor was obliged to publicly threaten if the women patrons of the Symphony concerts did not remove their prodigious and flaunting millinery, he would revoke the license of Symphony Hall. The millinery was removed and the men music lovers were, for the first time in many moons, enabled to feast their eyes on the singers as well as their ears on the melody.

Now Mayor Fitzgerald is requested to revoke the Symphony Hall license because the anti-hat regulation was strictly enforced by the management. The request is made by Miss Mary Buckingham of No. 246 Chestnut street, Beacon Hill, who wrote to the Mayor saying that the management of Symphony Hall bearked backward in its efforts to strictly enforce the anti-hat edict, and she urged that the Mayor revoke the license for the Symphony concerts unless the management apologized for the action of one of its ushers at last Saturday evening's concert.

She stated that although the ordinance which the Mayor directed be enforced provides that a low head covering without any adornment may be worn, the ushers at Saturday night's concert insisted that everything in the shape of headgear be taken off.

Miss Buckingham said that although the headpiece worn by her mother did not violate the city ordinances, an usher "brutally" insisted that she take it off or be forcibly ejected.

She said she has demanded an apology from the management and asked the Mayor to revoke the concert license if he did not receive notice of the requested apology within twenty-four hours after her letter reached him. The Mayor is worried over the incident.

LEXINGTON TO HAVE WINTER CARNIVAL

Lexington will have a "military" Winter carnival this year on January 7, on the Twin-Elm Spring Estate, and the proceeds will be given to the Lexington Minute Men, a military organization chartered by Governor Draper, to form the basis of their Memorial Armory Building Fund. President Taft has already accepted the first ticket to the carnival. Mrs. Taft gave her name to head the list of patronesses. Mrs. Draper has consented to act, as have Mrs. John L. Gardner, Mrs. Eugene N. Foss, Mrs. Curtis Guild, Jr., Mrs. Eben D. Jordan and others.

PUSHING WAR ON DISEASE GERMS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Dr. Simon Flexner, director of the Rockefeller Institute, spoke at Columbia University on "The Study of Bacteriology." He told of the achievements of Pasteur and Koch, reviewing the progress of the science in late years, and predicted a great future for this "most practical form of the scientific endeavor."

The great check that has been encountered in the attempt to solve the problems of bacteriology, Dr. Flexner declared, is the impossibility, even with our most powerful microscopes, to bring into the human vision some very minute parasitic infection parallel. These minute germs are living organisms, asserted the lecturer, which is established beyond question, for only living matter could behave in the way they do.

"Our present microscopes," said Dr. Flexner, "resolve into vision only the relatively coarser particles of matter."

Questioned by Auditor.

An auditor questioned Dr. Flexner as to whether in lieu of the Methuselah's prophecy of a diseaseless world would come ever to pass.

"Yes," replied Dr. Flexner, "I think that that was some day be, but you and I will never see it."

Dr. Flexner divided disease infection into two classes, spontaneous and experimental. Natural diseases, he said, are the result of spontaneous infection. Experimental infection is the attempt to duplicate spontaneous infection for scientific investigation. But it is not always possible, Dr. Flexner declared, to reproduce spontaneous infectious experimentally and our failure to discover the cause of many diseases is due to our inability successfully to transmit these spontaneous infections into the lower animals.

Fighting the Germ.

While it is impossible even by segregation of the human being from all sources of disease to rid the world of bacterial infection, he may reduce the extent of germ ravages. In addition to the scientific means which have been found effective, nature provides many mechanisms as a defence against bacteria. This said Dr. Flexner, is a marvellous example of so-called natural adaptation.

Dr. Flexner told how Pasteur discovered the character of the pest which was destroying the silkworm, and caused the annual loss in France of 100,000 francs. This work, said the lecturer, was the foundation of Pasteur's later fruitful studies in bacteriological science.

Work of Dr. Koch.

As showing how complete were Pasteur's investigations in many fields of science, Dr. Flexner stated that in the twenty-five years since Pasteur's time practically nothing new has been discovered with reference, for instance, to the bacterial treatment of hydrophobia. Dr. Flexner also reviewed the work of Koch in tuberculosis and discussed the accomplishments of other scientists.

"In no other natural science," declared Dr. Flexner in conclusion, "has practical achievements followed more quickly and surely upon what was in the beginning thought to be abstract knowledge, than in bacteriology."

HONOR "MANCHESTER MARTYRS" TO-NIGHT

Memorial services in honor of Allen, Larkin and O'Brien, the "Manchester Martyrs," will be held this evening at the American House. The meeting will be in charge of Boston Central Branch of the United Irish League. The principal address will be delivered by ex-Mayor Moriarty of Providence. Augustine J. Daly, former Mayor of Cambridge, will preside. The musical features of the evening will be contributed by James J. Flynn, the well known Roxbury tenor, and by William O'Brien of East Boston.

O'CONNELL TAKES BRIDE TO-MORROW

To-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, Cornelius Francis P. O'Connell will wed Miss Marasita R. Lenehan of Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania. The wedding will be private, and very quiet, only the families of the bride and bridegroom attending. Father Fidelis, who is well known in literary circles as James Kent Stone, will perform the ceremony. The Congressman's brother, Joseph O'Connell, will officiate as best man, while Miss Lenehan will be attended by one of four college friends.

PARK MEMORIAL TO "IK MARVEL"

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 22.—Two acres of land and a large brick house, located on Whalley avenue, this city, have been purchased by public subscription and will be used as a memorial to Donald G. Mitchell ("Ik Marvel"). The deed will be used as a public park and called Beecher Park, and the house as a library to be called the Donald G. Mitchell Home.

TO TALK POLITICS AND CORPORATIONS

"The Corporation — Relation to Politics," will be discussed on Wednesday evening, November 30, at the American House, before the Economic Club of Boston and former Governor John D. Long will preside. Vice-President Frederic W. Byrnes of the New Haven road will be among the speakers.

Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef to Boston for the week ending Saturday, November 19th, averaged 8.67 cents per pound.

$85,000 NEW YALE GIFTS

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 22.—Announcement was made at the November meeting of the Yale Corporation at the university of an anonymous gift of $150,000, three-fifths of which is to be used as an endowment fund in the interest of instructors and assistant professors of the university. Announcement was also made of the receipt of $50,000 of a fund of $500,000 left to the university by the late A. Barnett Collins of Fort Worth, Tex., of the receipt of $20,000 from Newton Barney of Farmington, Ct., toward the fund for the professorship of education, and the receipt of a like amount from the family of the late John H. Whittemore of Naugatuck as a memorial gift. It was largely due to Mr. Whittemore's interest that the professorship was established.

NO DECADENCE; STEADY GROWTH IN NEW ENGLAND.

A careful study of the resources of New England revealed the fact not of decadence, but of steady growth, a real renaissance. Our human resources are wide and potent in the field of manufactures because of the great variety, our skilled labor supply is the greatest of any city, less liable to great strikes; our transportation facilities are excellent; our financial strength is generally recognized.

CUP TO WIDOW OF JOHNSTONE

A long delayed order authorizing a transfer of $100 from the reserve fund for the purpose of purchasing a cup for presentation to the widow of a boatracing contest at Saratoga during the aviation meet in September was adopted by the City Council without opposition. The contest was won by Ralph Johnstone, who was killed at Denver last week. The order was held up for weeks. A majority of the members thought the Mayor might not to offer cups in behalf of the city unless he had power to make good those he offered. The opponents of the measure finally withdrew their opposition, the cup will be made and presented, as originally planned, and it will be sent to Mrs. Johnstone at Kansas City.

"OLD MAN'S DARLING" PRODUCES A DIARY

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—A "Diary of an Old Man's Darling" came to light today following a sensational raid upon the apartment of Mrs. Otto Emil Merkle—the aforesaid "darling"—on Claremont Hall, One Hundred and Twelfth street and Broadway.

Mrs. Merkle, who is a young woman in her early twenties, was in the apartment at the time with a man she said was Jacob Ruoff, a jewelry manufacturer, who lives at No. 222 Riverside Drive. Otto Emil Merkle, her husband, and a friend who se name Mrs. Merkle gave as David Cavanagh, a magazine writer, discovered the raid.

From what the young wife said, Mr. Ruoff, who had already been named by her husband in a divorce suit pending against her, took to the apartment to get away when the husband entered suddenly. They were rather excited over the affair. Big to her declaration, of course, Mrs. Merkle said her husband lost his head and threatened to shoot everybody.

She declared it all started some time ago by what she termed Merkle's attempt to "shanghai" on one of her parties a man she feared had designs on her husband's money. Her husband, she declared, entered into the conspiracy by sending her letters and glasses as evidence of the misconduct she had indulged in, and the scheme, she said, failed.

Ament Solid ivory, Eh!

In explaining the circumstances leading to the marriage Mrs. Merkle told a story that reads like a page from a novel. It was while she was playing in vaudeville in Yokohama, Japan, that she received a proposition which, she says, was the first offer of some character that came her way. Merkle, she said, was a member of some minstrel troupe which was playing a return engagement in the Japanese city. Then he asked me to marry him, and, though I had only known him a few days, I consented.

"I was only nineteen years old then, and I was a mere child, you might say, for my age. I confess I was a spoiled darling. But I soon found that Mr. Merkle's head was not turned by the gift he painted his miniatures upon—solid ivory. I was unhappy from the very first day of my marriage. Never of some moments met me without a present, a bouquet of flowers or something of the kind. Then he asked me to marry him, and, though I had only known him a few days, I consented.

Mrs. Merkle, who reveals story of married life.

Some Pangs of Regret.

January 2. There's a feeling of regret already. Why did I do it? I wonder now if when the days go by I shall feel even more pangs of regret.

January 3. He's still daffy about me. As long as I have my way I'll tolerate him. He grants all my wishes and is good to me, but that is not enough. I want the society of people able to go about and enjoy themselves, and don't wish to sit reading art magazines in front of the home fireside.

January 4. If I were called upon to tell all girls, I'd say, "The best thing is not to get married at all, but if you do, for the love of Heaven avoid old men." He certainly thinks he owns me.

January 5. The lectures have commenced. I know it. He wants me to eat one at a time, and to sit on one side of the table while he sits on the other and looks across at me all the time. I now see the signs of jealousy I have read about.

January 6.—Now there's trouble. He has discovered the letter from Jack. He is furious at discovering the trick I played upon him.

Purely Platonic with Jack.

Here Mrs. Merkle explained that "Jack" was a young man with whom she had a platonic friendship. But one time he, in friendly fashion, tried to present her with a valuable diamond ring, and her husband, coming into the house at the moment, locked Jack downstairs and for a half a block beyond. His Jack, soon thereafter, reappeared in the domestic drama.

January 7.—I told him I was tired of staying home and not going about seeing what was doing in the city. He relented, and gave me plenty of money.

January 8.—Met before noon Jack to-day. He called to know why I had not written. But he (the husband) found the letter and gave me another scolding.

January 9.—Am a little more contented to-day. I find now that the theatre and other functions give me plenty to think about and I don't have to bother much about my home. But when I start thinking that I am married and unhappy I think all life is at an end. Only by shutting out such thoughts can I ever be quite contented.

For some unexplained reason the diary ceased at this point. Rest Mrs. Merkle's many literary efforts to answer. She filled this room, dedicated, she said, to Mrs. Ruoff—the same who took to the fire escape.

When first I met you, dear, beside the trade sticks I never dreamed how near to me you'd be.

That soon you'd be all the world to me!

Furthermore, the young wife offered for the public prints selections from several volumes of poetry and philosophy, all tending upon the dull gray atmosphere of the apartment.

"I suppose," she said in conclusion, "Mr. Merkle will get his divorce now. I hope so—then I'll marry Mr. Ruoff."

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

HELD FOR BURGLARY.

Fountain pens and stamps found in their pockets when they were arrested on Lynde street as week led to a charge of breaking into the drug store of Frank M. Frost on Broadway, Chelsea, against Charles Mitchell and Benjamin Peatro. They were given a hearing before Justice Cutler in Chelsea today and held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury. The men were arrested in connection with another break.

MORSE, WALSH, DENIED PARDONS

Charles W. Morse and John R. Walsh, jail-sentenced former bankers, will not be pardoned by President Taft, his decision from Washington today. This information came in the mail.

Morse is in prison at Atlanta. He is serving a term of fifteen years. Walsh is serving a five years' term in Leavenworth prison, Kansas.

From a reliable source in Washington it was learned today that President Taft has decided not to hear any plea for mercy to either case until they have gone through the regular channels. The President, of course, will take into consideration the recommendation made in this case by Mr. Wickersham and attorney-general.

Morse was said to intend for the filing application of funds of the National Bank of New England in New York. In the course of his fight for liberty Morse declared that at one time he was worth $22,000,000. Mrs. Morse surrendered all of her property in an effort to save her husband, and she has never given up the hope that she may be able to obtain for him a pardon.

Recently there came a story from Atlanta to the effect that Morse had been placed in solitary confinement for the past few days because he had refused to tell where he got $46,000 which he had smuggled into his cell.

The place where Morse was confined is called the "hole" by the officials of the prison, and there Morse cannot receive any visitors for the next few days at least, and his supply of food will be cut down.

Walsh was the general director of the Chicago National Bank, the Home Savings Bank of Chicago and the Equitable Trust Company of that city. The banking institutions failed for a number of these institutions followed suit. The men who were at the helm of these banking institutions were both prominent and powerful in financial circles.

Some of Walsh's enemies were of such a questionable financial character that the officials of the banking department looked into the matter. It was promised that the big man should be severely punished if found guilty.

This was not done, and Walsh was arrested and convicted of using the bank's money illegally. In spite of his great wealth and influence he went to prison.

'MASTER' BROWN SERVES COFFEE

NEWPORT, Nov. 22.—Master Josh Nicholas Brown, the four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown, is carrying hot coffee and rolls daily to workmen on the Lime Rock sidewalk for all he could soon learn.

The coffee and rolls are donated by Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, the baby's mother. It was an idea, however, of the baby himself, who noticed that many of the workmen were unable to go home to dinner on account of living too far away. He thought it would be nice for them to have a hot drink with their lunch pail meal, so asked his mother to make us a pot of coffee for him to take out to them. Mrs. Brown did so and the young multimillionaire promptly lugged the steaming pot of coffee out on the sea wall himself. He offered it to the men in a manly, good-fellow sort of way that thrilled them themselves. They were glad to get the coffee.

Mrs. Brown occasionally adds a big pan of fresh rolls to the coffee pail, and the sailors, lost the coffee with its refreshing warmth, is the big item in the donation.

Master Brown wears a stylish overcoat, soft felt hat and tweed suit for these coffee trips. He looks prosperous and he has for the most wealthy appearing visitors around here.

His old title of "Baby Brown," which clung to him quite a while after his infancy, is discarded now and he is Master Brown.

WOMAN WHO SHOT DOE ON OPENING OF THE HUNT SEASON

MARGARET A. GRAHAM.

WOMAN HUNTER AN EXPERT SHOT

LUDLOW, Nov. 22.—Miss Margaret Graham, the noted "strong girl" of this town, is preparing to make herself a rep and a pair of mittens from the hide of a doe which she shot, lugged home and skinned all by herself on the first day of the "open" season.

Miss Graham, nineteen years old, six feet tall and weighing 147 pounds, is the champion feminine athlete of the East, she told her friends she was going to bring down a deer the first hunting day. She made good on her promise in sportsmanlike style.

Clad in khaki hunting suit and armed with a shotgun, the law not allowing a rifle to be used on deer, Miss Graham started on the road toward Green's crossing. Late she came back dragging an eight-pound doe behind her. She had killed it on the second shot at Green's crossing, two and one-half miles from home. She swung the carcass over her shoulder and brought it part of the distance that way. The rest of the way she dragged it on the ground.

In the afternoon Miss Graham skinned the deer with a new jackknife she had bought just for that purpose.

LOSES BOTH LEGS CATCHING A TRAIN

LYNN, Nov. 22.—Maurice Matarchilo, employed in a Boston leather factory, fell under the wheels of a Boston bound narrow gauge train as it was leaving the local station today and both legs were cut off. He was taken to the Lynn hospital, where it is feared he may die. Matarchilo lives at No. 23 Ruffin street, Lynn. He was late for the train today and tried to climb aboard as it was leaving the station. He missed the car step and fell under the wheels.

MORGAN GOES TO WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—J. Pierpont Morgan, the New York financier, is here today. While he refuses to discuss the object of his visit, it is believed he is here to discuss with State Department officials the $340,000,000 Chinese loan. This belief is strengthened by the simultaneous visit here of Professor Jenks of Cornell University, who recently investigated Chinese financial conditions for the State Department.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM

A Disease for Which Ordinary Treatment Is Unsatisfactory.

Description of a Severe Case Which Was Readily Cured by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The ordinary medical treatment of inflammatory rheumatism is still far from satisfactory. Most of these treatments are directed to the symptoms and are considered successful if they relieve the pain and stiffness. But the blood has not been purified and the rheumatism is sure to return, especially after a season of exposure to cold and dampness. For this reason sufferers from rheumatism will be interested in the success which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had in curing this painful disease.

Francis H. Clarkson, of Archbald, Pa., was cured of a severe attack by this treatment. His case is described by his mother, Mrs. Arthur Clarkson, as follows:

"Two years ago this spring," she says, "my son, Francis, had a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. After he had been under the care of a doctor for some time and had tried several remedies without getting relief, I was advised by a friend to give him Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"When he began taking the pills he had been sick for several months. His joints were badly swollen and pained him all over his body. His legs were so swollen and painful that he couldn't stand on them for three weeks. I said him give the pills a good trial and he was entirely cured."

An attack of rheumatism is very difficult to cure so that it will stay cured. Ordinary treatment aims only to relieve the pain until the attack wears itself out. Then it is liable to occur again and usually does, year after year.

If you have failed to find more than temporary relief from your suffering the treatment is most likely not a blood-builder and you are, therefore, not treating the cause of your trouble. You should not neglect to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills but begin a course of treatment with them at once. A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," containing more information about rheumatism and other diseases of the blood, will be sent free on request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

TOLSTOI PROPHET OF HIS OWN DEATH

A remarkable essay by Count Leo Tolstoi, whose tragic death last week followed so closely his flight from his home in Yasnaya Polyan, in which is seen a prophetic suggestion of his desertion of his wife and children, has just been discovered among the great philosopher's writings.

As the article was written two years or more ago, it would seem to indicate that Tolstoi's sensational and seemingly inconsistent act was not the impulse of a moment or the prompting of an enfeebled mind, as has been stated, but that the "Peasant Prince" had contemplated leading the life of a hermit for several years prior to his death.

Those who knew Tolstoi and his views were not surprised when he disappeared, for Tolstoi had often stated that he could find divine justification in such an act. Thus, the closing chapter of the great preacher's life, was, his intimates say, but a natural, evolutionary climax.

This is borne out by the essay which is considered particularly significant at this time, and is given here:

By LEO TOLSTOI.

If I were to leave my home, my wife, my children, my work, I would be doing it in accordance with God's law, and I could find laws and customs to support my step. To leave my wife, my children, and go to a monastery; or to leave my wife and children, to divorce her, to marry another, and thus lead an immoral life—for all this I could find justification in divine and human laws. So that we can do whatever we please; we can find laws for everything.

I am sitting in my house, my children are studying, playing; my wife is working. I am writing. All this is done only because there are laws recognized by all. No stranger comes to live in my house, because the house is mine, and, according to the Tenth Commandment, no one should covet another's house. My children are studying because I ordered them to study, according to the Fifth Commandment. I am working, doing what I can, according to the Fourth Commandment.

I mentioned the commandments of Moses, but I can mention thousands of laws and customs half confirming these same commandments.

Laws to Contradict Laws.

But if I like I can find laws and customs which contradict these laws. I can say: Why have you a home, Christ, who showed us an example of how to live, had "no where to lay His head." Why have you a home when there are poor people who have no shelter? Why have you a home when it was said: Do not care about it? I can say: Why do you care about your children? Not a single hair of their heads (all fall) without the will of the Father in Heaven.

Why do you teach them if the poor in spirit are happy? I may say simply: Why do you teach them heathenish wisdom if you are a Christian? I may say: Why do you teach them that they may be rich, since it is better to fill the soul? Why have you a wife, if it be better not to marry at all? Why have you a wife since it was written: He who will not leave his wife * * * is not worthy of Me? Why do you work? Why do you write this? It is against humility.

This is the situation in which we find ourselves, and this is wrong. Not that we have no laws, but that we have too many laws and we have become too wise. And this is why I ask: Are we gods or the devil's?

Look Back on the Day.

Each day and each hour we are called upon to choose: to eat or not to eat; to take or to give; to kill or to forgive. Look back at the day you have passed and recall how you have lived it; look back at every act of yours and you will see that you did it because you knew the difference between good and evil.

It is said in the Bible that Adam (before tasting the apple) in the Garden of Eden did not know the difference between good and evil. At that time he could say that he did not know. But we cannot say it. We see only such cattle—they live without knowing the difference between good and evil. But where there are human beings there is also law. When I look at a single individual, I see that he knows what is good and what evil, and he leads his life accordingly. When I look at the crowd I see the law more clearly. It is written, and the powers of the crowd see it or they do not recognize it, knowing some better law.

Where, then, is the law under which we live? To this we say that it is the law of what is best for my self, my children, eating, marrying, guarding one's children. This is not a law, but the need of the flesh, the very needs for which this law is recognized. It is the very same as the needs which are also the needs of cattle. Animals have no law, but their needs are the same. That human beings may not all want to eat the same thing, marry the same person, that they may not kill each other over it, it is necessary for them to divide it. It is necessary for them to make laws.

No Division of Property.

In order to divide property it is necessary to restrain our passions, and from the heart of man springs forth the law of how to restrain the desires. And with each desire there is a law; for law is nothing else than humanity and the subjection of desires. And of such laws there are many in the heart of every man. Animals have no laws, and have no need for laws.

good, or bad, man cannot live without law; the law is written within himself. Neither there never was a man without a law within him.

If you say there is no law you mean to say that there are too many laws now, that these laws are too complicated. There are also other laws, and many of them, which conflict with each other, on forbidding that which the other permits. So that people live in this sea of laws and statutes as they please, obeying no laws, or using laws with regulations, and thus living without any law, according to their desires. If you say this you tell the truth. This is just what I want to discuss, and that is why I ask: To whom do we belong? To God or to the Devil?

Whether we live according to the law or according to our desires we must not forget that there is a law; and not one law, but myriads of laws, and we follow thousands of them, and without them no man ever lived and no man can ever live. There is such an abundance of laws, and we have become so entangled in them, that we can live according to our desires. Many people live thus, selecting such laws as suit them and discarding such as do not suit them. But there is always a law. If two persons live together three days they will have their laws; and in the 5,000 years since the world began, according to the Bible, or the millions of years, according to science, there have been millions of millions of men—is it possible that they should have no laws?

People Grow Sensible.

But you will ask what I mean by God and by the Devil. You will say: "It is time to put aside these ancient words. Much has been said about these fables, about God, about the Devil; much evil has been caused by them, and much blood has been shed on account of these fables. The time has come now that the people have grown sensible, that they have ceased believing in these fables in God and the Devil. And if you wish to speak, speak so that we may understand you; but do not use meaningless words. What is God? What is the Devil? No one has seen them; no one can even conceive them. They are human beings, and human beings have invented both God and the Devil; they invented them, and have long discarded their invention as unnecessary. If you wish to speak, speak about human beings."

It is of human beings that I wish to speak, and therefore I speak of God and the Devil—both God and the Devil are within men, and are inseparable from them. I speak as I do, I speak of God and of the Devil because otherwise I cannot say what I wish to say.

You say: It is impossible to understand how God sat somewhere sat eternally, and suddenly resolved, "I am going to create the world." And then he created the world in seven days, saying, "It is good."

True, it is impossible for you and me to understand this if we only question, and this is suddenly related to us. But, tell me, can you understand that all which exists had no beginning? Can you understand and you say that everything has a beginning, and going over from one beginning to another, you went far, and by various combinations and endeavors you reached the beginning, not only 7,000 years back but much further. But however far you may have gone, you admit that the beginning of beginnings is just as far and as inaccessible.

Perception of the Divinity.

Nevertheless you are seeking the beginning of beginnings; your eyes are directed toward it; from it, you say, sprang everything. Well, it is this very beginning of things that I call God. Consequently when I say "God" you cannot understand that you do not understand me, nor can you censure me. You and I do not know, because we believe alike, and no one can demand of us that we understand God as described in the Book of Genesis. Even as no one could demand of Moses that he could understand the light, the sun, the moon and the stars better than the earth. But the answer of Moses to the question as to whence we came is the same that we receive from the beginnings of beginners, from God.

Even this, you say, this meeting of beginnings is far from that which we understand by the word of God. By this word we understand a Being who takes care of mankind. It is said that He wrote the law with His finger, that He sent down His Son, and so forth. All this is not to be found in a rational conception of the beginning.

I agree with you: There is no such God in the beginning of beginnings. But, just as you cannot conceive a living God, merciful, loving or angry at mankind, so the human mind cannot conceive what is man himself, what he is like. Tell me what life is and I will tell you what a living God is. You say: Life is developed from the lower organisms. But the lower organisms have within them the consciousness, and whence came the lower organisms? You say: From the infinite beginning. I call this God. I say the consciousness of my life, the consciousness of my freedom, is God.

Why Gilchrist Millinery Excels

Most Millinery Stores base their selling prices upon the style of a hat, claiming that "style" is something that gives a value above intrinsic worth.

Gilchrist Millinery is priced on the same basis that governs the selling prices throughout the store. You pay only for intrinsic worth.

This is why our hats excel. There is no millinery organization in New England superior to ours—its capability is directly reflected in the distinctiveness that characterizes all Gilchrist millinery.

You are not charged for "style" in our hats, yet you secure the most authentic millinery possible to procure. You pay only for the real worth of the hat.

That is the reason that Gilchrist millinery store excels in value giving and volume of business.

We are especially prepared to serve your holiday millinery needs, and especially direct your attention to our superb showing of new mid-season models priced at approve your conspicuous stand regarding Senator Lodge. Let nothing discourage you, for you must and will win this fight.

FOSS DECLINES TO STAND FOR SENATE

Original. "T. S. HUBBARD."

"Lodge Must Go."

Lodge must go," asserted Mr. Foss today. "His work is done unless he repents, and he is not the repenting kind. Like the leopard, Lodge cannot change his spots. Criticised in some quarters for the fight I am making, I have only to say that the fight will go on persistently and pitilessly.

"I am fighting Lodge as a man, not the principles he stands for. Those principles have been repudiated at the polls by Democrats and Republicans alike, and the will of the people must be made effective and not smothered. The people must be heard and the people may well insist that they shall go.

"I am not a candidate or candidate as I would not accept the place, nor am I a candidate for the place. Excellent men have been mentioned for the place. One thing I will say—the man selected must stand for election and support every plank of our platform. That is the kind of man who must be sent to Washington to take Lodge's place.

The only way that Henry Cabot Lodge can save his skin this time is to take the Democratic platform and stand on it. Let him say that he believes in more democracy for the people; that he believes in a real progressive tariff bill, free raw materials, reciprocity with Canada, the initiative and referendum, the income tax and everything else that means progress for the entire country and especially Massachusetts, and he will be elected, but that is the only way he can be returned to the Senate.—Governor-elect Foss.

Senator Lodge's attention is being given over today by Governor-elect Foss and Colonel William A. Gaston. Although Mr. Foss has not committed himself to Colonel Gaston's candidacy he wanted to go over the entire situation with him.

In discussing candidates Mr. Foss said: "We have a lot of splendid men for the place. There's Henry M. Whitney, John B. Thayer, Richard Olney, Colonel Gaston and Congressman Joseph P. O'Connell." He did not mention James H. Vahey or Charles S. Hamlin.

In his effort to get the scalp of Senator Lodge, Mr. Foss appears very much in earnest. He already expresses confidence that he has "Lodge beaten to a frazzle."

Senator Lodge declines to discuss the situation but his friends say he does not appear greatly worried by the demand of Mr. Foss that he retire to private life. One of Mr. Lodge's friends referred to Mr. Foss' attack as "brazen effrontery" and said that it had made two votes for the senior Senator.

Plans Campaign.

Mr. Foss has definitely settled upon his campaign of the State to get the people's expression of Senator Lodge. He says this campaign will cost about $10,000 but he considers it will be money well spent. He says a vote on the Lodge question will be taken in every town where he holds a meeting. He was asked if there wasn't danger of people getting an impression that his persistent attacks on Senator Lodge and his renewed efforts to defeat him for re-election were more personal than political.

"Well, that isn't true," said Mr. Foss, with a smile. "I have no feeling in this matter other than to see that Massachusetts is properly represented in the Senate of the United States. It is true that Senator Lodge read me out of the Republican party when I was making the same fight there that I have made in the Democratic party, but I care nothing for that. This is not a personal fight with me. I am fighting for great principles."

Mr. Foss added that he would not, if he could, place a single straw in the way of Senator Lodge going as American Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

"He might not do much harm there in that capacity," he said, "but as Senator from Massachusetts another six years he would be out of place, as he is not in touch with the people of the State and is reactionary of the worst kind."

Mr. Foss says he is not a candidate himself for the Senatorship, but he has been elected Governor of the State and that he is going to do something for the people of Massachusetts, who elected him.

Personally, Mr. Foss would like to see the Democratic party put up a candidate and unite upon him, but if there are several candidates in the field he says the fight will be lost the same, as the voters will soon unite on the man they want after they have heard him explain his platform.

"I shall not ask a man to vote against Senator Lodge because of my position as Governor," said Mr. Foss. "Whatever I do in the way of will be said in the open to the people."

Mr. Foss also remarked that the great trouble with most politicians is that they talk thing, and political battles can be fought and won in the old way with the orators cracking the party whip and pulling the strings on candidates.

"We cannot fight Lodge and like him, using the same methods as he does. Let us be serious, the party while the guns shoot and money be said. "We must fight him in the open. We must appeal to the sovereign rights of the people. I have an abiding faith in them. When they understand a subject they usually settle the matter right. I am tired of the old political methods which Lodge and his friends use. They are not up-to-date. Lodge is living in the past."

The Governor-elect asserted that the fight he is planning against Senator Lodge should have been started in the State campaign, but owing to the row over the Democratic nomination and the short time left for the campaign it couldn't be done.

THREE WHO SEEK NOMINATION FOR MAYOR OF LYNN

EBEN W. SEARS, JR.

JAMES E. RICH
HENRY W. EASTMAN

LYNN ELECTION RIOT RENEWED

LYNN, Nov. 22.—An angry crowd of election rioters drove Thomas Eastman and his chauffeur from their automobile and forced them to take shelter in the Burrill school house today in the second of the serious outbreaks of the mayoralty primary election. Eastman is a brother of Henry W. Eastman, a former Mayor of Lynn, and one of the twelve candidates for the office.

A large automobile bearing signs urging the voters to support Henry W. Eastman was driven slowly about the city early today. Thomas Eastman sat in one of the seats.

Near the Burrill school house the automobile was brought to a standstill, and immediately a crowd of men tore the signs from the auto and attempted to break them over the heads of the occupants. Pieces of the wreckage were thrown at the two men. The machine was badly damaged.

A heavy rain will was sent the police and the crowd was dispersed.

Mayor James E. Glick, former Mayors Eastman and William C. Connery are favorites in the election today. By the new city charter two names are selected as candidates for the final vote to be taken in December.

Eben W. Sears, Jr., one of the candidates, went today with a number of workers making a hard fight for nomination. He has the utmost confidence despite the fact that he was mobbed in the first riot of the election by the angry crowd. The crowd had wish to beat him speak, and bombarded him with eggs. Wood and refuse was thrown and Sears was a spectacle when he managed to make his escape.

SCHMITZ HEAD OF CAVALRY SQUADRON

Captain Charles A. Schmitz, the commanding officer of Troop D, and the senior captain, was elected major of the First Squadron Cavalry, M. S. G., on the seventh ballot by the line officers of this squadron, at the South Armory. Lieutenant Colonel Morton presided at the election, where the vote was deadlocked until the seventh ballot, when Captain Schmitz was made major by a seven to five vote. The latter being first Lieutenant Frank T. Hinckley, of the inspector general's department, will be the commander succeeds Major William A. Perkins of Jamaica Plain, resigned, recently by retaining a military school in Indiana, in which State he served for several years as an officer in the National Guard.

TRICK TO EXHIBIT $300,000 REMBRANDT

Henry C. Frick of Pittsburg and the North Shore, who has a fine collection of paintings, will give Bostonians a chance to view the best in his gallery. He will exhibit fifty of his most canvases in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts beginning December 1. One of the paintings in the Frick collections to be shown here is Rembrandt for which he recently paid $300,000.

WHITE OUT OF BREWERY.

WAKEFIELD, Nov. 22.—George Homer White of New York, is no longer a director of the Bartels Brewing Company of Edwardsville, near here. It was announced today. His brother, Ernest L. White, was chosen to fill place at the directors' meeting last night. James H. Nicholson of Boston was re-elected president.

SOCIAL WHIRL WEARIES BUDS

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Debutantes are right in the midst of the merriest season on record in years, and so swift is the pace being set for them that already many of the most fragile buds in the garden are beginning to droop. The week opened yesterday with Mrs. Richard Dana's tea at her Marlboro street residence for her daughters, Miss Dorothy Dow and Miss Marion Dow. Today comes Mrs. Frederick Ayer's reception for her pretty young daughter, Miss Katherine Ayer; Mrs. Fiske Warren gives her second tea for her daughter and niece, while Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard of Brookline has also chosen today for the reception which she is giving in the ball room of the Tuileries to present Miss Rhoda Pollar, while this evening comes Mrs. Bancroft Hunnewell's wedding dance at her Beacon street residence for her debutante nieces, Miss Caroline Sturgis and Miss Emily Sturgis. Yesterday also saw Mrs. Russell Sturgis's six daughters. Thanksgiving Day is free from debutante dates though the day following has been chosen by Mrs. Henry Wheeler of Marlboro street for the dance in honor of Miss Eleanor Wheeler and Mrs. George Lyman Perkins's reception for Miss Prudence and Miss Lillian M. Pruden will take place at the Brookline residence.

An engagement of much interest in the younger set is that just announced by Mr. and Mrs. John M. Longyear of Brookline of their daughter, Miss Judith Dodge Longyear, to John M. Richardson Lyeth, Harvard '07, and Harvard Law School '10. Mr. and Mrs. Longyear have issued cards for a reception at the former's Fairfield, Me., line residence on Thursday, November 24, from 4 until 7 o'clock.

Miss Amy Silsbee Appleton is having a happy time of it with her numerous fall functions and quantities of flowers since the announcement of her engagement to Mr. Frederick A. Washburn. Miss Appleton is the second daughter of General Francis Henry Appleton of Marlboro street and Peabody. Her brothers are Francis H. Appleton, Jr., who married Miss Nathalie Gourlie of New York, and Henry S. Appleton and her sister, Mrs. Tyrrant P. Kingsbury, Me., and returned yesterday handsome girl of the brunette type with a slender girlish figure and much charm of manner.

Dr. Washburn was assistant surgeon of the Sixth Massachusetts regiment under Colonel Rice and was also in service in Santo Rico and the Philippines. He was retired with the rank of major and is now assistant dtor of the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston and Waverly.

Professor and Mrs. Barrett Wendell are sailing for Europe the coming month to pass all Winter, and during their absence Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell Jr., (Barr Lee Higginson) will occupy the Marlboro street house.

* * *

Mrs. Robert H. Gardiner has been spending the week end at her country place at Glandmer, Me., and returned yesterday as to-day she is giving a dance for her debutante nieces, the Misses Sturgis. Over Thanksgiving the Gardiners will entertain another house party at Oaklands.

Miss Helen Hooper, known as the wealthiest debutante of her set, who, with her chaperone, Mrs. Nathan Herron, has been spending the past week in New York, is returning to-day. Miss Hooper is to be one of her North Shore estate at West Manchester until the end of the month.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Williams and their sons are coming into town to-day from their estate in Dover. There will be guests during the Winter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Adams of Beacon street, Mrs. Williams' parents.

ARCHBISHOP GIVES $500 TO AID BAZAAR

To show his appreciation of work done by the Ladies' Catholic Club Association of the Cathedral parish, Archbishop O'Connell has given his personal check for $500 to assist in making the bazaar to be held in the clubhouse, No. 1472 Washington street, South End, Friday and Saturday nights, a success. The officers of the association have prepared a number of novel features for the bazaar.

PROVIDENCE MAN A SUICIDE BY GAS

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 22.—James E. Hallaran, one of the best-known commercial photographers in the State, was found dead in the front room of his home, No. 41 Fenner street, early today. Three gas cocks were found open. Mrs. Ann Sullivan, who lives upstairs, detected gas escaping and turned it off. Hallaran's son, who pounded on the door and awakened Hallaran's wife and child. Mrs. Hallaran said her husband, who was forty-one, had been melancholy.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

OCTOGENARIAN OFF TO POOR FARM, DOG HOWLS IN CELLAR

EAST BROOKFIELD, Nov. 22.—Hiram Thompson and his dog Rover are separated to-day, for the first time in three years. Hiram, eighty years old and feeble, has been taken to the poor farm. The dog tried desperately to follow his master. When Hiram was driven away in the carriage of Overseer of the Poor Felix G. Balcom the dog jumped through a kitchen window and came bounding along. He was locked in the cellar finally, where he whined piteously. Thompson cried at being separated from Rover. Overseer Balcom will keep Rover through the Winter. When open weather comes again Thompson may be allowed to return to his little home, where he can have Rover again.

TAFT RETURNS FROM PANAMA

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Nov. 22.—The armored cruiser Tennessee with President Taft and party aboard, convoyed by the armored cruiser Montana, passed in the Capes this morning from Panama. The President was saluted by the guns of Fort Monroe upon his arrival off that place. The President's yacht Mayflower will take him to Richmond, where he will address the Virginia Teachers' Association.

TRAIN KILLS DEAF WOMAN

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Anne A. Wilson, sixty-nine years old, was instantly killed by a train bound from Rutland for Burlington, on the Rutland Division of the New York Central Railroad, here. Mrs. Wilson was walking along the tracks and, being totally deaf, did not hear the approaching train.

PLAN AUTO MEET AT MARDI GRAS

By J. C. KERRISON.

The next really big race meet of the country for auto cars will be at New Orleans when the third annual Mardi Gras Speed Carnival begins. This meet will be run in conjunction with a dealers' show at the Fair Grounds course February 23, 25 and 27, 1911. The show will open one day in advance, the two making for the Mardi Gras carnival a motor car week which will stand out in the minds of all the Southerners as well as thousands of visitors from all parts of the country.

The dates for the Mardi Gras meet were selected some time ago, but the best of arrangements for the racing part of the program has not been made public. Within the next two weeks the list will be announced, however, and the work of securing entries will begin. Already virtually all the space for exhibits has been taken by the New Orleans dealers. Twenty four of these, representing some seventy odd cars, have secured space, averaging 625 square feet each, and will exhibit as fine cars as have ever been seen at a local show.

The Mardi Gras race meets in New Orleans have always been marked by the presence of great stars, such as Louis Strang, Ralph De Palma, George Robertson, Barney Oldfield, Robert Burman, Louis Chevrolet, Caleb Bragg, Ben Kerscher, Mrs. Joan Jewett Cuneo and others. This next meet will be no exception to the rule. Already many have signified their intentions of entering, while several new drivers who promise to develop into stars will be on hand.

Having thrown over 17,000 miles of its proposed 20,000 mile durability run, the Albert Detroit "Bull Dog" is now in New England and will spend Thanksgiving Day in quaint old Portland, Maine, from which city the run to Florida will be made. Montague Roberts and Dr. Chas. G. Percival, who constitute the crew of the "Bull Dog," are well adapted by years of long experience in prospecting touring for a trip like this, and Roberts' experiences in the New York to Paris race have given him opportunity and training to meet anything which may arise on a trip like that of the Albert-Detroit.

The 150 cars have met with the usual November weather to be expected at this time of the year but except for accidents, not every condition of weather from warm to extreme cold. The worst stretch of road met between Detroit and Boston was the sixty miles from Detroit to Toledo and going into Erie, Pa. All along the route from Detroit to Boston the crew of the sturdy "Bull Dog" were received with great crowds and the local automobile and automobile clubs turned out to greet the two men who are driving in what bids fair to be the longest automobile tour ever before attempted.

MORE ARRESTS DUE IN BIG SWINDLE

Postmaster-General Declares Fake Brokers Have Fleeced Americans Out of $100,000,000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—More sensational arrests are expected within twenty-four hours in the crusade inaugurated by the government against "get rich quick" concerns that are declared to have secured more than $100,000,000 from the confiding American public.

The fact that Postmaster-General Hitchcock is directing the operations of the Federal officers goes to show that the fight is on to a finish against dealers in bogus mining stocks.

The officers of Burr Brothers, who were arrested yesterday, will be arraigned Monday, as will Charles L. Vaughan, director of the Continental Wireless Telegraph & Telephone Company. All four men were still in the Tombs to-day in default of $10,000 bail.

E. W. Preston, who was arrested in Portland, Ore., in connection with the attack on Burr Brothers, will be held there until the cases are brought up here.

$100,000,000 Fraud Loot.

Postmaster-General Hitchcock, who personally led the raid against the Burr Brothers, brokers, states that gullible Americans have been fleeced out of $100,000,000 by get-rich-quick concerns during the past five years by fraudulent use of the United States mails. During this time seventy-eight cases have been brought against such concerns by the Government.

The last raids were against concerns which he says had swindled the public out of $40,000,000. Although the Burr firm had no Boston office hundreds of Boston and New England people are among the company's victims.

"The Burr Brothers were selling stock of the Buick Oil Company, a concern with $3,000,000 capital. They have also organized the following oil companies:

"Carolina Consolidated, capitalized at $1,000,000; Coalinga Amalin, capitalized at $1,000,000; Kern Western, capitalized at $750,000; New York Coalinga, capitalized at $500,000; Coalinga Crude Oil, capitalized at $400,000; People's Associated Oil Company, capitalized at $1,000,000.

Hitchcock's Statement.

"The Burr Brothers have also organized promoted and sold the stock of the following mining companies: Rawhide Tarantula, capital of $1,000,000; Golden Fleece Mining and Reduction Company, capital of $500,000. Practically the entire stock in these has been sold and all the companies are on of existence.

"The Burr Brothers have also organized promoted and sold the stock of the following companies: Elsinore farm of Michigan; California Encalyptus Timber Company, capitalized at $1,000,000; New Amsterdam Securities Company, capital of $80,000, later merged with Burr Bros., Inc.

"They have also sold large amounts of stock in the Red Top Mining and Leasing Company, capitalized at $1,000,000; Long Bench Mexico and Arizona Mining Company, capitalized at $1,500,000; Nevada Goldfield Mining, Milling and Smelting Company, capitalized at $5,000,000; United Rockford Lead and Zinc, capitalized at $1,000,000; Florence Consolidated Mining and Milling Company, at $1,000,000; Round Mountain Central Mining, capitalized at $1,000,000; Cobalt-Portage Mine Company, capitalized at $1,000,000; British-American Copper Mines and Smelter Company, capitalized at $5,000,000; Arizona Copper, capitalized at $1,000,000; Portland, $1,000,000; Searchlight Cashier Gold Mining Company, capitalized at $1,000,000; Holcomb Automatic Engine Company, capitalized at $5,000,000; Cotton Copper Company, capitalized at $1,000,000.

"All these companies are out of existence. They have sold stock in the Happy Jack Copper Mining and Developing Company, capitalized at $500,000; Yonkee Basin Gold Dredging Company, capitalized at $1,000,000; Toledo, Wabash and St. Louis railroad, capitalized at $5,000,000; Chicago, New York Electric Air Line Railroad, capitalized at $2,000,000.

"The latter named companies are in existence at the present time."

Sheldon H. Burr, president of Burr Brothers; Eugene H. Burr, Secretary and treasurer of the firm, and Frank H. Tobey, its vice president, were arrested in the first raid and held in $20,000 bail each. The government charges the firm sold between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 in mining and oil stocks worth little or nothing.

SENATOR MAKES NURSE A BRIDE

Miss Margaret Donahue, a skilled nurse of Boston and Philadelphia, became the bride in Brooklyn today of Senator James P. McNichol of Philadelphia, the wealthy Republican "Boss" of the Quaker City, who is known familiarly in high political circles as "Jim" McNichol.

The wedding took place at noon in St. Mary's Church of the Assumption and was attended only by immediate relatives and intimate friends of the couple. Directly after the ceremony Senator and Mrs. McNichol left in a private car for Florida.

Particularly gratifying to the bride on her wedding day was the presence of the Rev. Father John McMillan of Cardigan, P. E. I., the bride's spiritual leader in her girlhood home at Cardigan. Father McMillan came here to assist the Rev. Michael H. McManus, rector of St. Mary's, in performing the wedding ceremony, and to bestow his blessing on the bride as her only parish priest.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mary Donahue, who, like the bride, is also a skilled nurse. Senator McNichol was attended by George Hooper of Brooklyn. Mr. and Mrs. Hooper are natives of Cardigan, P. E. I., and were the brides sweet's guests during the preliminaries for the wedding.

The romance which led to to-day's wedding began when Senator McNichols, as a member of the Pennsylvania Senate Committee on Public Institutions, was participating in an inspection of hospitals in the State. Miss Donahue was superintendent of nurses in the Philadelphia General Hospital. The story goes that the unconventional leader was so favorably impressed with the comely, dignified head of the nurses in that hospital that he sought and obtained further acquaintance. This ripened into mutual love.

Miss McNichol is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Donahue of Cardigan. She came to Boston some years ago and received her training as nurse in the Massachusetts General Hospital. Her splendid qualifications for nursing resulted in her becoming superintendent of nurses in the big Philadelphia institution where she later met Senator McNichol.

This is the second marriage for Senator McNichol. His first wife died nearly Two years ago. He has ten children living.

"Jim" McNichol is the "Big Fellow" in Philadelphia politics. From his office in the Betz Building he guides a political machine that is absolute. He has served in the Pennsylvania Legislature for several years.

He is important in the business life of the city as well, and is one of Philadelphia's most public-spirited men. He is a prominent contractor and built the Philadelphia subway.

CHELSEA HIGH EDITORS SPLIT

A controversy over the appointment of Samuel Isenberg to the position of editor-in-chief of the Beacon, the Chelsea High school publication, has engendered bitter feeling among the entire student body. Seven members of the staff have tendered their resignations. They are: Alice C. Prince, business manager; George MacLellan, assistant business manager; Gladys Reed, exchanges; Mildred Martin, society; Gladys Reed, personals; Madeline Jeffers, personals, and Chester Reed, athletics.

The only members of the original staff to retain their positions under the new editor are Kaye Bowers, assistant business manager, and Anna Rogers, associate editor.

The trouble started when Ruth Hutchins, the former editor of the Beacon, left school in October, and Miss Emily C. Robbins, the head teacher of English, appointed Isenberg as her successor.

Miss Prince, the business manager who has resigned, says:

"The staff protested to Miss Robbins claiming that it was unfair to the members of the staff to appoint an outsider to the position of editor over the heads of those who had been connected with the paper for years. Miss Robbins refused to listen to us. The following day the senior class held a meeting and asked Isenberg to resign. This he refused absolutely to do. The members of the staff then resigned."

Samuel Isenberg, the newly appointed editor, says:

"My appointment to the position of editor of the Beacon was entirely without solicitation on my part. The only reasons my opponents advanced were purely personal in their nature. Many prominent Jewish men approached me, offering financial support to the Beacon, and I tried in vain to convince them that the action of the pupils was not due to racial prejudice. I told them that the teachers were acting fairly and squarely in the matter, and refused to allow my friends to make a political issue of the controversy. It was only after I had positively them repeatedly not to drag the matter into the politics of the city that they consented to heed my request."

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 250,000 more than its next highest competitor and 75,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

DRIVES A BAD COLD OR THE GRIPPE FROM YOUR SYSTEM IN A FEW HOURS

The most effective and harmless way to cure the Grippe or break a severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs, is a dose of Pape's Cold Compound every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken.

You will distinctly feel the cold breaking and all grippe symptoms gone after the very first dose. It promptly relieves the most miserable headache, neuralgia pains, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverish-ness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, soreness, stiffness, and rheumatic aching.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

After three years' research we have conclusively demonstrated that quinine is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

SARAH BERNHARDT PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO COUNT TOLSTOI

TOLEDO, Nov. 22.—Miss Sarah Bernhardt paid a high tribute to the late Count Leo Tolstoi today. Speaking through her interpreter she said:

"I was very, very sorry to learn of Count Tolstoi's death. He was a very great genius. His works and life are left as a priceless heritage to not only his own people, but to the world.

"I know him well and was one of his greatest admirers. His heart was so big it took in all the world. Mon Dieu! what a man! My poor friend is no more. Russia has lost her greatest patriot and humanity one of its apostles. His great heart is filled with love. I mourn for him.

"Amon chemin de fleurs ne conduit a la gloire," she added. "No flowery pathway ever leads to glory."

LITTLE FOLKS' FEAST.

ST. ELIZABETH GUILD FAIR OPEN

The guild of St. Elizabeth, one of the best known charity organizations in Boston, held its annual fair today in the Mechanics building. Mrs. Wentworth Apthorp is at its head. The assistant chief of the fair is Mrs. Leopold Morse. The assembling of the articles for sale at the fair began early in the week, and the arrangement of the booths was completed yesterday afternoon. The booths are draped in white and pink and were presided over by the following ladies: Mrs. Henry M. Rockwell, Miss Mary Farley, Miss Mary Dwight and Miss Anna McAuslan. The booths for fancy baby goods are in charge of Mrs. M. Josephine Bleakie, Miss Gertrude Donovan and Miss Ethel Donovan. Those in charge of refreshments were Mrs. J. W. Bleakie, Miss Ethel Thompson, Miss Nora Dunne, Miss Mayrie Egan, Miss Genevieve Blake, Miss Adelaide Smith, Miss Lucy Fitzgerald, Miss Beede Fitzpatrick.

It was expected that the sale, which ended at 9 o'clock tonight, would net the guild more than did the sale last year, when the proceeds amounted to $,000.

JOHN REDMOND SENDS THANKS

The following letter has been sent to America by John E. Redmond, M. P., leader of the Irish Parliamentary party, in which he thanks Ireland's friends in the United States for the splendid welcome and substantial support accorded to him and to his associate envoys, Mr. Devlin and Mr. Boyle, during their recent visit to this country.

Mr. Redmond's letter, addressed to National President Ryan of the United Irish League, is as follows:

Dublin, Nov. 14, 1910.

Mr. Michael J. Ryan, National President United Irish League of America, Philadelphia:

My Dear Mr. Ryan—I am anxious to write you a few lines to thank you and the other national officers of the United Irish League for their splendid efforts to make our late mission in America what it has been. My own and genuine anticipations were long exceeded, and I feel that from the great work we did I and my colleagues made many friends among the members of the National party in this country.

G- at Interest in the Cause.

What struck me more than it ever did before was the widespread interest taken in the present crisis of Irish affairs by commercial and professional men everywhere I went. This unparalleled interest was due not merely to the splendid organizing efforts of your League or to any other friends, but also to self and our colleagues have come to the fact that the people themselves appreciate what has been accomplished in Ireland during the last ten years. The creation of 300,000 peasant proprietors

The erection of 50,000 laborers' cottages in place of the wretched hovels which are a disgrace to Ireland.

The restoration of 3,000 evicted families to their homes.

The creation of a great national university.

Result of American Support.

These and other things are the fruits of the last ten years of labor on our part, and of constant support on the part of our friends in America. Much remains, however, yet to be done, and there is great need that every effort should be made and continuous support be given. We are now face to face with the practical certainty that we will have another general election within a few weeks, and the orders of our enemies of endeavoring to bankrupt the national party in Ireland is once more to the front.

Mr. Lloyd George has declared that if this policy "shall been adhered to at each succeeding general election, the party that under the will of mouth the national party, assisted by a small body of the labor party, have not the necessary majority for some of the most considerable portion of the present Conservative offices to provide funds for another election every soul now held by the National- ists in that country disbanded. Even if it resulted in no gain of seats the moral effect would be enormous.

If this policy of the London Times be carried out, a very large sum will be necessary for the election, and unless when the gigantic efforts and sacrifices of the subscribers to the fund at stake, nothing less than the most energetic action will meet the impending obstacle to Home Rule. I feel sure that the Irish people in America will acclaim the suggestion and still not grudge a few dollars more to secure victory for their party to be fought.

Very truly yours,
JOHN E. REDMOND.

WEDS POLICEMAN MAIMED FOR LIFE

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Mounted policeman Arthur G. Warren, who was fined at Brooklyn and Two Hundred and Twenty-fifth street August 27, the day and nose crushed on August 27, the day before that set for his wedding to Miss Martha Pardo, married here to Miss Johanna Dupree Spurgeon Ingvell. The fact that his injuries disfigured him for life did not weaken her determination to marry him as soon as he recovered.

BITUMINOUS COAL RATES SUSPENDED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today suspended proposed advances on bituminous coal from Hocking valley & Ohio railroad until March 15 next. The rates were to have become effective December 10. The origin of the Hocking valley company of Philadelphia against the Clyde Steamship Company for transfer and storage charges involved the reasonableness of rates on shipments of cotton lining from Philadelphia to Chicago.

McGRAW FOR SENATE IN WEST VIRGINIA

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 22.—In a letter to Democratic State Chairman W. G. Bennett, issued from Grafton, John T. McGraw announces his candidacy for the U. S. Senate to succeed the retiring Senator Nathan B. Scott, Republican. Colonel McGraw has been Democratic national committeeman for many years and was a candidate for the Senate twelve years ago against Scott. The present legislature is forty Democratic on joint ballot.

North Pole Wellman as Germans See Them

Here is the way Simplicissimus, the famous German comic paper, views the attempted flight of Walter Wellman, who is now in Boston.

Prologue. With iron nerve, Wellman, the greatest swimmer under the sun, prepares for his visit to Europe. As his air bag full that as a flounder, he decides to swim across. Then, he is not entirely skilled in the art of swimming, but his ignorance is no hindrance, and Walter takes lessons spread out across an ordinary household chair.

As the "Wellman" undertaking requires the greatest care, Walter feels that it will be cold, so he permits himself to be massaged by his wife. He is cheered by an offer from the New York Herald of $100,000 for the first news of his landing. He takes his house cat for company on the long journey, girdles himself about with a goat's skin and ties a telegraph sapling with wires to his back. This papers picture his birthplace, and interview his old nurse, who displays before the reporters Walter's nursing bottle, which the nurse kept as a souvenir of the illustrious man and now keeps filled with her daily portion of whiskey.

Unafraid, yea, almost hoary-headed, Walter poses in the cross-fire of newspaper photographers. Uncle Sam gets his entire navy at his disposal. Walter takes touching farewell of his family, thoroughly convinced that dying the death of a hero is one of the most remunerative of professions.

Walter is ready. A roar of union announces the start. Walter pooh-pooh Americans on this show. Farewell!

The keen explorer discovers that the ocean is wet.

He cries aloud for help and decides to turn back.

To be conquered by the forces of nature is just as meritorious as to conquer them. Coming back home he is received in triumph and enshrined in the hall of fame of the nation's demi-gods.

THINKS FLYING WILL END WARS

Walter Wellman, the pessimist, made the prediction at the annual banquet of the Aero Club of New England, at the Copley Plaza, that the progress of aerial navigation would be so great during the next year that the international races and the expected mass development both of the aeroplane and the lighter-than-air machines he said, that war would be made so destructive that it would be looked upon as a means of deciding disputes between nations.

Although he was not ready to say definitely whether he would make another attempt to cross the Atlantic in a dirigible, Mr. Wellman said that he still considered the trip practicable, and expressed himself as confident in the future of the lighter-than-air machines.

"The use of aerial navigation," he said, "as this Aerial craft will be used in war, will hundreds and perhaps thousands of aerial cruisers lighter than air and heavier than air machines will be used as scouts and for attacking hostile forces. Through this medium war will be made so destructive and so ruinous that it will end the great movement now on foot throughout the world for international peace will be hastened and brought to a speedy culmination. The time will, therefore, come when there will be no more war."

Others who spoke were Charles J. Hilldeb, Cortland Field Bishop, Mayor Fitzgerald, William C. Hill, William Hedreich, Rabbi Fleischer, Adams D. Claflin, C. W. Burrus, Professor David Todd, Andrew W. H. Gunnett and Colonel Everett U. Benton.

ANGRY SUITOR SLAYS HEIRESS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Just after she had been informed that she had become heiress to $20,000, Lucie Chelanet, a beautiful young French woman was shot and killed as she stood on the steps of the building at No. 139 West Twenty-eighth street today.

Miss Chelanet was shot, the police declare, by a jealous suitor who feared that his sweetheart's love for him would cool after she had become well-to-do. Several hours after the shooting Luigi de Mayo, an admirer of Miss Chelanet was arrested.

The prisoner fared so well during the police "third degree" examination that the detectives later started out to search the French quarter for a man known as "French Louie."

"French Louie," according to the police, was the ardent suitor for Lucie's hand but she discarded him several months ago in favor of Luigi. The latter told the police that "French Louie" had threatened to "get even," both with himself and the girl. One police theory was that "French Louie" and De Mayo met and fought a revolver duel in the girl's presence for her hand, and that she was killed by a stray bullet.

This theory was apparently substantiated by the fact that De Mayo was wounded from three slight bullet wounds when found.

De Mayo declared that he had been held up by a masked highwayman in the darkness early today and was shot for resisting search.

HENRY G. THOMPSON DEAD

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 22.—Word has been received here of the death in Paris, France, of Henry Grant Thompson, secretary and treasurer of the Henry G. Thompson & Son's Company of this city. Death followed an operation for appendicitis.

PLEA FOR THE TOILING MOTHER

"It is not a sin for mothers to be obliged to work. It is the community that makes it necessary and permits it that is sinning.

"I believe in pensioning mothers who are forced to toil in industrial establishments for at least six months before they bring offspring into the world and for at least three months afterwards.

"The payment of a living wage to men will eliminate to a great extent the industrial destruction of the family."

The Rev. George Luther Cady, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Dorchester, who has made a special study of the problem of bettering conditions for mothers who are obliged to toil at the loom and labor for long hours in the mills and industrial establishments, is discussing the subject for the BOSTON AMERICAN. He takes some interesting and timely comment upon the deplorable conditions which compel the mother to be a factor in the commercial life of the community.

Mother's Place Is Home.

"I am not a Socialist," says Mr. Cady, "and yet I believe that the Socialistic theme that the mother is one of the assets of the community and as such should be encouraged and protected by the state. She produces the best that the country turns out—its citizens.

"The basic principle of mothers being obliged to work is radically wrong. The place of the mother is in the home. It is unfortunate that industrial and commercial conditions will not permit her to remain here. Women are obliged to work, but the mother should not be obliged to work at those critical times when her presence in the household means so much for the welfare of her family and the nation.

"My belief is that some pension system which would relieve mothers of the necessity of working for long hours up to the most critical point in their lives would repay the Commonwealth through the superior class of citizens which would result.

"It is an undisputed fact," he says, "that our prisons are populated to-day by a large percentage of men who owe their position to pre-disposition to hereditary conditions. They are brought into the world without the full quota of physical and mental strength that should have been theirs.

Favors Pension System.

From an economic standpoint the State would be the beneficiary if the money that is now paid to support these inmates of penitentiaries, hospitals and insane asylums could be devoted to distributing pensions to needy mothers. The benefit would soon be apparent in the decrease in the number of citizens of negative value to the community.

In illustrating his contention that the bettering of conditions for the mothers operates for the betterment of the community Mr. Cady cites a specific instance that came to his attention in a small German town.

"In that town," he says, "one of the largest manufacturers discovered that the percentage of infant mortality that occurred among the mothers who worked in his factory was 40 per cent. The percentage of infant mortality in the town itself was but 18 per cent. The manufacturer was a humanitarian. He gave the matter serious thought. The result of his consideration was that mothers who worked in his factory were given several months leave on pay before they approached maternity. The result was that the percentage of infant mortality among mothers in his factory dropped in a short time from 40 per cent to 18 per cent, or just even that of the town itself.

Pay Men Living Wages.

"The remedy for the conditions which compel mothers to labor lies in the payment of a living wage to men," says Mr. Cady. "By a living wage I accept the definition of the term given by Pope Leo XIII., and that will enable the father of a breadwinner of the family, to receive enough to support the family himself. I am not to be impressed upon the people that every dollar that a woman earns subtracts from the wage paid to men. Statistics show that the deficit between the average man's wage and what he actually expends for ordinary living expenses is from $10 to $250 annually. It is made up by the income from the mothers and children."

Maternity is the biggest asset a nation has. It should be preserved through a reorganization of our industrial life so that a mother can stay at home to take care of her children. Our modern industries as they are, are robbing us of our children. The world would be better off if every mother would walk out of the shop and let the husband earn the living. I cannot see the security of the modern woman in the home otherwise."

The Rev. Mr. Cady does not believe that there is no place in the business life for the mother. He believes, however, that there is field for the activities of the single woman in business pursuits. But once she assumes the cares and responsibilities of marriage, her place is in the home."

REV. GEO. L. CADY

REV. GEO. L. CADY, WHO PLEADS FOR TOILING MOTHERS

"1915" FAVORED BY ARCHBISHOP

The Boston-1915 movement takes fresh impetus to-day, following a vigorous final rally in the civic advance campaign in Faneuil Hall. Over 1,000 attended the rally. Letters were read from Governor-elect Foss and Archbishop O'Connell.

Speeches were made by Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, Mgr. M. J. Splaine, President Charles J. Thwing of Western Reserve University and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York. All approved the Boston-1915 movement.

The letter of Governor-elect Foss read in part:

"We need here to focus the railroad lines which shall link us with every section of this continent, American and Canadian. We need to build the docks here which shall welcome the commerce of the world. And surely no issue is more vital to all within the metropolitan area itself, and the great problem which confronts us to-day is the best way to bring about this Greater Boston—if consolidating these neighboring but disjointed municipalities into one great metropolis."

Archbishop O'Connell's letter read in part: "The combined influence of men of public character and large experience, such as those who form the Boston-1915 movement, if brought together, cannot fail to bring excellent results."

REVERE MAY TRY NEW CIVIC PLAN

Revere may have a form of town government never tried before in the history of the world if the voters there and the Legislature agree to accept a plan of government devised by Judge Samuel R. Cutler of the Chelsea Municipal Court, which has been submitted to a town committee. The plan is something like a compromise between the town government and the commission. The former has been pronounced too unwieldy, the latter too small by many.

The scheme outlined by Judge Cutler plans to have a governing body consisting of every fifty voters or majority fraction in each precinct of the city.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE WITH ARMED MOB

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 22.—Attacked by a mob of over 100 men armed with clubs and brickbats, who cut the electric wires and then in the darkness battered down the door and made their way into a saloon where he was seeking evidence of illegal liquor selling, Emerson H. Doughty, a Sturgis deputy, fought for his life for half an hour. Although attacked from all sides and cut and bruised, the officer succeeded in holding his ground until help arrived and rescued him at the point of a revolver.

TOLSTOI'S BODY BORNE TO HOME

ZASEKA, Russia, Nov. 22.—Through solid ranks of weeping peasantry the body of Count Leo Tolstoi, in his plain black oak coffin, was borne to-day from the little railroad station here over the same road that Tolstoi himself had traveled less than two weeks ago, when he left his home to seek solitude from the world. Countess Tolstoi, weeping bitterly in her grief, headed the little procession as the casket was carried three miles upon the shoulders of the Count's best beloved to the Tolstoi estate at Yasnaya Poliana for the last rites and interment beneath "Poverty Oak."

It was a strange concourse of friends and admirers who gathered here and who lined the route to the Tolstoi home. There were men of fame in the literary and scientific worlds, nobles in elegant dress, but the most interesting of all was the field laborers, dressed in black, coarse clothing, their hands calloused and their backs bent from toil. Their women and children came with them, and little boys and girls carried boughs of fir in their hands, a traditional spiritual emblem in Russia that is supposed to bring peace to the departed.

Children Carry Coughs.

When the special train bearing the Count's body and his wife and some of his children arrived here from Gorbatchevo, where the night had been spent, the little log station was draped in black. About it stood a crowd of men, women and children. The men raised their voices in chants and the women wept loudly. The little children carried their bangs of fir and pine not knowing what the great sorrow was, but recognizing that a friend had gone.

There was a sudden rush toward the railroad car, each and every man wanting to assist in carrying the coffin over the journey to Yasnaya Poliana.

Countess Tolstoi had to be assisted by her daughter, Alexandra, and one of her sons. At times she faltered so badly that she nearly fell, but Count Ilya Tolstoi at times spoke comfortingly to her. She had spent the night by the side of her husband's coffin and she was so exhausted that Dr. Makovitsky, the friend of the family, insisted that she should not walk but ride.

Tribute from Czar.

Anexandra, Tolstoi's favorite daughter bore up bravely under the shock.

On the margin of Premier Stolypin's report to the Czar of Count Tolstoi's death his Majesty wrote:

"I sincerely deplore the death of the great writer who embodied the golden age of his talent in his creations. A pupil of the fatherland, constituting one of the most glorious pages of Russian life. May he find in God a merciful judge."

DONATION OF $25,000 TO VERMONT COLLEGE

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 22.—C. P. Smith, treasurer of the University of Vermont, has received a certified copy of the will of Lewis L. Coburn, a member of the class of 1859, who died recently in Chicago, bequeathing a sum of $25,000 to the university. The donor made no provision for any special use to which the money was to be devoted. Mr. Coburn was a native of Washington county, Vt., and after completing his course at the University of Vermont attended the Harvard Law School. At the time of his death he was a practicing attorney in Chicago.

A BOLD STEP

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broad-cast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines.

Thus Dr. Pierce has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits and placed them in a class all by themselves by making them remedies OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, complete list of all the ingredients composing it, ous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same.

From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, overworked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

FREIGHT RATE INQUIRY GOES ON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—J. M. Dodge of the Link Belt Company of Indianapolis, an expert in scientific management, was cross-examined by Solicitor O. E. Butterfield of the New York Central railroad lines West, when the second day's session of the inquiry being conducted by the Interstate Commerce Commission into the reason for the proposed advance in railroad rates was resumed to-day. Mr. Dodge went minutely into the question of the science of managing corporations and other industries, following closely the testimony given by yesterday's witnesses.

H. V. R. Shields, manager of the Brighton mills, Passaic, N. J., was the first witness put on the stand to-day by Attorney Brandeis, representing a number of Eastern organizations of shippers. During his testimony he also qualified as an expert in the management of industries. Following Mr. Shield, C. J. Betterly, traffic manager of the Schlitz Brewing Company of Milwaukee, took the stand.

By the introduction of the evidence so far adduced, Attorney Brandeis decided to-day that he would show that great strides have been made in the economical and scientific management of industries, and that these could be employed by the various railroad systems, thereby lowering the cost of operating and maintenance. He concluded that it would not be necessary for the railroads to increase rates if they would adopt a system of scientific and economical management such as exists in other industries.

SMUGGLING CASE WRIT DISMISSED

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—United States District Court Judge Hand to-day signed an order vacating the writ of attachment obtained by the government against Joseph Brooks & Co., importers, following the seizure by federal inspectors of a large quantity of woolen goods imported from France. The writ was granted following the institution by the government of suit against the company to recover $3 the neighborhood of $200,000 on alleged undervaluation of imported woolen goods.

MAN KILLED BY FALLING TREE

PITTSFIELD, Nov. 22.—Curtiss Goodale, of Windsor, a small town twelve miles east of here, is dead as the result of the first accident caused by the open deer season.

He was chopping down a tree on the mountain side about a mile from his home. The tree was almost cut through. He heard the report of a shot gun and turned to look for the hunter. As he did so the tree fell upon him, crushing him to the ground. He died two hours later. He was sixty-eight years old and very prominent in Windsor.

Eighteen special game wardens are guarding the posted lands of the William C. Whitney estate on Mount Mountain. Anyone shooting upon the 14,000 acres in the estate is liable to a fine of $100.

A flight snow last night made the hunting better to-day, although the many hunters in the woods yesterday have so frightened the deer that they are now running wild and at the faintest suspicion of the approach of man they rush madly through the woods.

ARTIST TRUNK VICTIM, POLICE HUNT WAITER

Woman Tells Story of Love for Man Killed in Mystery.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Following the positive identification of the trunk murder victim as Albert Cullier, a young French artist, search was redoubled to-day for Frederick Lewis, the missing man, in whose trunk Cullier's body was found.

Three persons visited the morgue to-day and declared the body that of Cullier. Mrs. John Alexander, with whom Lewis lived from 1899 to 1902, and Policeman John H. Cook and his wife, Lucy Cook, made the identifications. Patrolman Cook, who knew Lewis and Cullier well, has been ordered by Deputy Commissioner Flynn, it is said, to go to Ireland in an endeavor to find some trace of the missing waiter over there. When Cook returns in will retire from the force, as he has been a long time on the force.

Police Watch Suspect.

The policemen and the women were positive that the body was that of Cullier. They recognized the artist by a flatness of nose and one gold tooth which had been noticeable during life. Cullier was a chum of Lewis and disappeared in the Summer of 1907. The identification satisfied Deputy Commissioner Flynn that the body is that of Cullier and he declared he believes Lewis, the missing waiter, to be the murderer.

"Lewis is the guilty man without doubt," he said.

"Have you found out who committed the trunk murder?" was asked of Deputy Commissioner Flynn.

"Well, it looks that way. It certainly looks as though we now know the guilty man. That man is William Lewis, the missing waiter."

"Will there be an early arrest?"

"That may be a matter of a day or two."

"Have you positively established the identity of the body?"

"Well, not positively—we never say positively, but to a reasonable certainty, yes."

"Who was the victim? Was he an artist?"

"Yes. It looks that way; an artist friend of the missing Lewis, named Cullier."

"Is that the correct name?"

Missing Man Lewis's Friend.

"That is the name we got and the only name. We were unable to get the full name. We have been unable to find any trace of this man Cullier, absolutely none, since he was visiting Lewis in 1902. He fits the description of that of the body in the trunk, and he was known to be an associate of Lewis."

"Have you positively decided where the zinc coffin came from?"

"I say don't want to say just now. But I will say that this was an improvised box, under the circumstances. The trunk was a cheap affair, and the box was made to fit."

Following the official police announcement that the body found in the zinc-lined trunk in the basement basement at No. 456 West Fifty-fourth street is that of Cullier, it became known that the department had sent broadcast a general alarm for the missing waiter, William Lewis, the original trunk owner. Accompanying this alarm is a revised description of the missing man.

Miss Ellen Enright and William Lewis, the latter wanted in connection with the New York trunk death mystery. Lewis disappeared on the day of his marriage to Miss Enright in 1905.

The most important and interesting revelations in this mystery came from women. Since the trunk murder was brought to light through the curiosity of Mrs. Philip Stenger, who determined to find out what the trunk contained, after it had remained in the custody of her husband for eight years, developments lagged.

Miss Ellen Enright of Ridgefield, Ct., told the story of the blasting of her romance with Lewis two hours before the time for the ceremony. And, last night, Mrs. Lucy Cook, living at No. 153 West Eighty-fourth street, gave to the public the facts which lead directly to the actual murder and sealing of the trunk during the mid-Summer of 1902, in a West Side apartment house.

Second Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn, who has supreme charge of the detective work in the greatest trunk mystery which has ever confronted New York authorities, admitted that the police have a suspect under surveillance.

Miss Ellen Enright, the trained nurse, who was to have married William Lewis on Jan. 11, 1905, and who has never seen him since the night of January 10, that year, is a good-looking woman, about thirty-five years old. She lives on the Mountain road, about two miles out of Ridgefield, Ct., with two sisters.

"The last time I saw William Lewis was on the night of January 10, 1905," she said. "He called at my home, No. 8 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, where I conducted a registry for nurses. He arrived at the house at 8 o'clock and left at 9. We were to have been married the next day, and the hour that he was with me was spent in going over the plans for the ceremony and for our honeymoon trip to Washington. Everything was arranged to the satisfaction of both of us.

"William left me early because he had a slight cold, and as we were afraid it was a bad one if he stayed out too late in the night air. He said he was not going to be anything interfere in any way with the wedding. He just words to me were of the most affectionate character.

"I cannot get away from the belief that the dead man in the trunk is William. They say he had been dead about five years, but it was five years ago that William disappeared. The two things seem to me to fit.

"William had no enemies, as far as I ever knew. He certainly had no rivals in my affections."

FAVOR ANDREW SQUARE SUBWAY

A subway from Park street, in continuation of the Cambridge tunnel, to the South station, and under Dorchester avenue, as far as Andrew square, with an important outlet for surface traffic at the corner of Broadway, in South Boston, is the "next move" in rapid transit to be authorized. It is much nearer than most people suppose.

A joint board, consisting of the transit commissioners and the railroad commissioners, have been studying the subject all Summer, and in pursuance of their duties will report to the Legislature soon after its assembling. Elaborate figures, covering both the engineering and the economic aspects, have been prepared. While these statistics show that it would be a huge undertaking, the route has so many evident means of availability as to make it decidedly worth while.

Stations will be placed in Washington street, for this subway would transfer to the tunnel at the South Station; again at the Broadway Junction, and last at Andrew square. This terminal would correspond with that at Dudley street in the history of the Elevated structure. It would be a temporary ending place in anticipation of the time when the underground way could be continued to Field's Corner or perhaps to Lower Mills.

Trains Would Make Fast Time.

The number of minutes for Park street to all of the traffic south of Andrew square would be greatly abbreviated by having so much a part of the journey made on the underground trunk. This is also true of the South Boston business. Distances on the Peninsula are short within which the passengers would be picked up at every corner, but once inside the tube their cars or trains would make fast time to the northeast corner of the Common.

This is the improvement that the joint board is sure to recommend. The Boston Elevated, it may be inferred from General Bancroft's recent remarks, will not be greatly opposed to it, in spite of the corporation's traditional attitude of reluctance to permit additions to its investments to pile up very fast.

General Bancroft's idea was that if the lenses could be extended so that the present tenants of these underground ways could provide the future, and some adjustment made between the West End and the Elevated, his company might be willing to authorize this enlargement of its plant. And these are the questions on which the joint board is now at work.

What effect giving South Boston and Dorchester a subway when Washington street on this side of the river is disfigured by an elevated structure will have on the South End real estate situation is not at first clear; they are likely to renew their demand that these tracks be put under ground, as is the case in Dudley street.

The Day of Elevateds Over.

This the Elevated is sure to oppose. Its officials will resist the chance that would divert traffic from Washington and Dorchester as a favorite, by asserting that the day of elevateds has passed, and that, notwithstanding this truth, they are now busily engaged to go underground. This new location, which is quite a different thing from rebuilding tracks already in service, would be a very expensive one, and the changes in the Dorchester territory has witnessed a nearly complete separation of grade during the last few months. Out to Neponset bridge, the Old Colony locations have been made of what used to be the cold Colony will soon be carried on what is practically an elevated structure through one of earth and masonry. Through the same region, then, the lines from the city of the South Station will be running cars overhead while those from the city proper to the street will be going underground. Together these changes will make a step forward in Boston's transportation story.

NATIONAL OWLS WIN RIGHT TO MAINE

Judge Pierce of the Equity Court has rendered a decision in the home rest of the Order of Owls at South Road, Ind., enjoining permanently and forever the residents in the Hill Farm suburb using the "New England Order of Owls" or any name containing the word "Owls."

The controversy between the two farmers of the Massachusetts Nest of Owls in Boston has been amicably settled and the old Massachusetts Nest has been placed on good standing with the home nest at South Bend.

JUDGE HARRIS WINS RECOUNT BY 77 VOTES

CARVER, Nov. 22.—Thomas C. Thacher, the democratic candidate for Congress from the fourteenth district, lost one vote on a recount in the town of Carver, while the vote for his Republican opponent, Judge Robert O. Harris, remained the same. Carver was the last town in the district to be recounted and unofficial returns from all the precincts now give Judge Harris a plurality of seventy-seven votes as against a plurality of 168 as shown in the press returns on election day.

Health and Beauty Secrets

BY MRS. MAE. ARTYN.

V. J.: To keep the scalp clean, sweet and healthful it is necessary for many to shampoo once a week regularly. If your head is inclined to be oily or if you encounter much driving dust, you should shampoo weekly. Soaps make the hair dry, hard and brittle and cause streaks; don't use them, no matter how delicately perfumed or attractively colored. You can depend upon your coiffure being thoroughly cleansing your hair and scalp, removing all dandruff, and free dust, if it makes an abundance of scarpling yet bland lather. Dissolve a teaspoonful of calpiba in a cup of hot water, pour a little on the head at a time, rub as you would with any shampoo; then rinse well. Your hair will dry quickly and evenly, so that it is easy to do up, and it will be so light, fluffy and fluffy, that it's a pleasure to do you have twice as much as before your shampoo.

Mrs. X.: It is true your husband took you "for better or for worse," but I do not blame you for urging him to do something for your failing hair, for a partly bald woman is about the most unattractive sight I can imagine. You can postpone the "for worse" many years if you will. The hair responds quickly to proper treatment. Use exercises for stimulating the pulp into the scalp and hair roots twice a week a quinine tonic, which you can make at home at little cost as follows: Get from your druggist one ounce of quinado, dissolve it in one-half pint of alcohol, then add one-half pint of water, and shake well. This invigorating tonic feeds the hair roots and gives the hair new strength and life. It prevents dandruff and falling hair, and keeps the hair clean, soft and silky. Quinado will not change the color of your hair but it will heighten the natural color and give it lustre. It will stop the hair falling out when you comb it and will tend to make it grow in thick and long.

Blanche L.: To be sure, you are likely to get fatter during the winter months unless you take proper steps to prevent the accumulation of excess flesh. In fact, you are even now entirely too stout for one of your height. Get from your drug store four ounces of parmetti and dissolve in 1½ pints of hot water. Then take a tablespoonful before each meal. This remedy is harmless and a rapid flesh reducer that will not make it necessary for you to half starve yourself to keep from getting too fat.

I. T.: No person's eyes will remain clear and bright under ill conditions. If yours are inclined to become dull, expressionless, red and inflamed when exposed to sun, dust or wind, you can easily remove the trouble by dropping one or two drops of eyesine eye tonic in each eye. Make this tonic yourself. Just get an ounce of eyesine from your druggist and mix it well in a pint of warm water. That is all there is to this simple remedy, but it is so good that many have been able to dispense with spectacles after using it for a month or two.

B. W.: Red hairs are no more disfiguring on a woman's face than hairs of any other color. I think you are too sensitive, but you can easily get rid of that downy growth on your face and forearms if you wish. Get from your druggist one ounce of delatone, make a paste by mixing a little of the powder with a little water, and apply to the surface from which you wish to remove the hairs, allow to remain two or three minutes, then wipe off the paste and wash thoroughly with warm water. This treatment will not injure the skin and can be repeated if the hairs should return. Two or three applications will kill the hair follicles for good. Your druggist will charge you a dollar for one ounce of delatone, but I know of nothing else so good. It certainly is much cheaper and less painful than electrolysis.

Georgia: A very able and skilled physician has originated a prescription that I find unusually useful in persons like yourself who are thin and angular. The prescription is sold by druggists under the name of egg-o-lene compound tablets at one dollar per box of 90 tablets, a complete two weeks' treatment. These tablets contain lecithin and egg meta, which are derived from eggs, and I never heard of a more satisfactory food builder. Exactly two will round out your neck, arms and bust as nothing else will, for it helps assimilate the food you eat, accelerates circulation of the blood and acts as a tonic for the nerves. Take three tablets two weeks before having your new dress fitted.

Miss Patsy: You ask for some combination to smother your freckles—face powder. Try this: Dissolve four ounces of orange juice in half-pint of hot water, add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, shake well and let cool. Apply to face, neck and forearms with the palm of the hand and rub gently until dry. Sponge free from with cool water and whitener that does not "shine" or streak with perspiration, and should be used all day. It prevents freckles, tan, redness and roughness. You will be delighted with its delicate fragrance, I know.

G. J.: You can make a face cream without grease that will remove blackheads and cure open pores if you will get from your druggist one ounce of almonds, dissolve it in one-half pint cold water, add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, stir well and let stand over night. Massage with this almonds cream jelly nightly and it will prevent or arrest wrinkles, and soften and refresh the skin, for it carries into the cuticle and pores the glow of health and gives that transparency and clarity so much desired. It quickly corrects a greasy, coarse skin, effectually closes it and stimulates it to healthy action.

Nancy: You cannot expect to have a smooth, rosy complexion and keep your blood in full of impurities from a deranged liver, which causes those ugly red pimples on your face. What you need is good, cleansing, system tonic that will purify your blood and make it flow in a healthy good looks. Get an ounce of kardene from your druggist, dissolve it in one-half pint alcohol, adding one-half cup of sugar, then enough hot water to make a full pint. Take a tablespoonful before each meal and in a short time this good, old-fashioned tonic will clear up your skin of sallowness, give you a good appetite and make you feel better and more energetic. It will really improve your looks a great deal and do you a world of good.

THREE TITLES AT STAKE IN BIG SCHOOL GAMES

School football players will have their day of days on Thursday. Thanksgiving Day is the greatest for high school teams in the year, and three games will be played for championships in three different leagues.

The title of the Boston High School League will be settled by the outcome of the Mechanic Arts-Dorchester High game at Dunbar avenue grounds. Both teams have three wins to their credit in the league and the winner will be second choice for the championship of the city, running next to Malden.

This game is a battle of old rivals and one of the toughest of the season is looked for by Coach Fraser, who was injured in the game with Quincy last Saturday, will probably be out, and this will seriously handicap the Dorchester team. He has been playing a great individual game this season and winning games on his own account.

Mechanic Arts is one of the foremost teams in the State. Captain Mooney, who is one of the best quarterbacks in the city, has led his team to victory many times by his work, and Dorchester will have a hard time keeping him from going through their line.

Boston Latin is at present the favorite over English High in their annual game at the American League grounds for the English rooters claim that their team is the Yale and with one exception Boston Latin has been playing consistently all season, while English has been having its ups and downs.

Somerville High will play its first game under new coaching when it tackles Roxbury High on inter-scholastic gridiron at Braves Field. Roxbury, the Old Mill State, who has been coaching Somerville this season, has been picked on account of the poor showing by Somerville in the game with Melrose.

Most of the first string men took a day off and attended the Yale-Harvard game, while the second string men made a poor showing, and this did not help any in the athletic authorities of the school.

Roxbury has made a good record this season having 6 to 0 games with Haverhill, Brockton, Rockport and Somerville and defeating Cambridge Latin, Prospect, English High and Salem, Somerville High will make the interscholastic league a three-team fight for the championship.

Malden High has the Somerton League title clinched, and will play its last league game Thursday with Medford High, at Malden. Malden High is without doubt the championship team in the State, no team having been able to push the State champion with it. It has defeated all its rivals decisively and has not been scored on.

Roxbury High, the winners of the championship of the Preparatory League, will play Waltham in the Waltz City this year instead of Newton, and this game promises to be a humdinger.

Both these teams have played hard games and piled up a good record. Roxbury has the best team developed in the league years, while Waltham has been playing in championship form most of the season.

Waltham was used up in the game with Revere last Saturday, the conference champions having to go to a game with Haverhill, which Waltham defeated and has not been defeated by Somerville

THE BIG ELEVENS AND THE ALL STAR PLAYERS

By SID WHIPPLE.

There never was a sprawling or summary of the work of college football teams ever conceived and published but as not to be mediately with a storm of disapproval from those who have their own favorite and their own ideas regarding the relative merits of the various elevens.

And so as we left year football writers persist in sprawling on a big sheet [illegible] opinions as this or that [illegible] and furthermore they always will. And more over they expect criticism.

So much for that. Now as to the dope. Here is a standing that has reasons for its adoption. It must be as others see it but nevertheless here it is. Harvard Pennsylvania Yale Brown Michigan, West Point Princeton, Dartmouth.

Here are the reasons. Harvard not withstanding the one game at Yale, has the most powerful all-around eleven in the country. Its team all through the season was consistent and stamped the mark of a best organized team as exemplified in Cambridge. And last November's game showed that barring the pure generalship and finesse it was the strongest of its opponents.

Penn Second in Line.

No team at Yale did any better. Crimson Penn to hit to tackle it has the strongest line in the country. It is well drilled and expert in the archbold forward and individually is best.

Only one other team is entitled to consideration for championship honors. That is Pennsylvania. He defeated Brown who was from the point of view the best team that has ever visited Soldiers Field at

Great Lovers of the World

Paola and Francesca

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal Examiner

"When we learned how that tender lover kissed the smile on the mouth he adored, he tremblingly kissed my own.

ISN'T it so, even if you are wise and knowing in the lore of fine old and proper books that there are names that sound familiar and sweet and intimate, as though they were dear friends of yours, names that you nod over when you frames them with their lips, [illegible] that a [illegible] in a certain hotel, a certain [illegible] the shape and the face that goes with the name is as clear and plain in your mind as a child in the next [illegible] in certain places of their lives, and [illegible] for the real they drift through the [illegible] shadows of your mind like obscure shadows

Isn't it so? You don't know it about a heap of the dead and gone folks whose [illegible] so easily off your tongue. For I don't. I've flipped the leaves of a stack of books and dug out the sweet and delectable and good old stories of [illegible] lovers of the world. And their names [illegible] always spoken together in one breath [illegible] and their names make, each pair, a little melody, a small harmony that is [illegible] singing a short pretty song every time you say them.

In the thirteenth century, before the time of the grim poet and the sober lover Dante loved his own rich love, two lovers, the one called Paolo and the other Francesca, lived in Ritnal. Ita [illegible] Francesca was the daughter of Guido of Polenta, Lord of Ravenna. And Frances a was very young [illegible] incredibly colored [illegible] eyes and [illegible] seen around her sunshiny land.

Desperate Desmond

If anybody ever starts a contest for the most unpopular villain, we're backing Desperate Desmond to win hands down. There are plenty of black hearted scoundrels in the world, but very few so lost to all sense of decency that they will give a lady such a throwdown as this is. We think he's just horrid.

Claude thinks so, too. But what can he do? He's tied securely to the edge of the chasm, right where Desmond left him and he's sure there are two days and he'll sing till he starves to death if Desmond gets his wish. Meanwhile, it's up to something to save Rosamond before she is dashed to death on the rocks below.

Well, Desmond is going to get his, anyhow. The police aeroplane has dropped him like a hot potato, and it looks as if he was due to start Rosamond's fate. We are not wasting any sympathy on Rosamond, however. He deserves the most he can get, but we do hope this is not sweet Rosamond's finish.

That aeroplane cop deserves a medal, and we intend to see that he gets it. Never in all the annals of the Police Department has there been a braver person. There will not be any coroner's inquest on Rosamond to-day, but we will have hopes that Desmond will soon be a "corpus delicti," as we say in French.

You can't beat that low life, Desmond. He's gone and stripped all the tires from his automobile and made an air cushion for himself, quick work that, eh? It's a wonderful how much work a man can do when necessitated in a short time when he has to. Oh, well, we'll get that cowardly cur yet; never fear.

Brave Rosamond has rescued Claude and is carrying him across the chasm. She might make faster time if she didn't wear a bobble skirt, but one may as well be dead as out of fashion. Desmond is in hot pursuit on a stolen bike. Will he catch them? The answer will be in tomorrow's paper.

Love While You May

By MARY R. ALLING

"IF she were here to-day
I'd pick her favorite flowers.
Hasie to say the simple words,
'I love you'; put away the toil
That keeps me from her; stop
To her my hand in hers again.
Oh, friend, the way is short; love while you may.
She is not here to-day."

THESE lines, which were written by Mrs. Lynn after the death of her mother, not only express the regret that horses over every newly made grave, but suggest why some men and women carry unseen graves in their hearts.

The anguish and remorse at putting away the bodies of our dead is not comparable in poignancy to that of looking into a living heart that has been robbed of a great love.

I know a married pair who started out together with an unusual depth of mutual love. The husband lived with his love day by day; every cell in his being was alive with it, and craved its response; and in the off hours from his professional duties he waited around humbly, like a dog, to get what crumbs of response he could.

The wife became absorbed with the unaccustomed duties of ordering a household untangling servants, filling her place in the social scheme, and taking part in club life. She accepted her husband's devotion as a matter of course, was secretly proud of him, but chary of praise. Gave him full sway in all exterior dutiful ways, but gave less direct attention to the nurture of his love than to that of the choicest plants in their garden.

After some years of this the husband concluded that his wife had no real love for him and that his love himself had to be drifted elsewhere. Three years later long hours woke up to the fact that his heart was barren, his ambition gone, and his life blank.

The wife, who had steadfastly loved her husband with the first great love—only it had been pushed into the background of her consciousness and veiled from the surface by the inferior need of the passing hour—was, at first, inexpressibly shocked, horrified, and humiliated at the awful treachery and insult to her husband and her wifehood. But reason as she might about the matter she could not kill the love in her heart. As the terrible weeks dragged by home, society, and everything she had been serving, came as less than nothing in comparison with what she had sacrificed for them; and gradually she came to see and accept her part and responsibility in the tragedy.

Then she tried to win her husband back to express her love in every way she could think of. He, waking to this effort on her part, and through it coming to believe in her love, with great strength cut loose from his other connections and held himself steadfast and loyal to her. But the old sweet fount of his love would not flow.

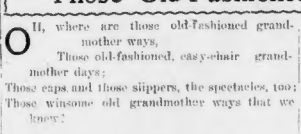
In vain he tried and waited for it. Never had he so appreciated, admired, respected, realized his wife's character and ideals as now when the thought of her and even her presence left him cold. He had lost the power to love.

Each felt that this phase of their self fering was out of all proportion to the mistakes made; and it only made matters worse for either to think for the other, at fault. Life was a dead thing.

This story stops here. I would not dare foretell its end; but I may hope that with some kindly aid from circumstance the husband's mind and the wife's will recover no doss a pic-deal body from being prostrate with disease.

Not only should we love while we may, we should express the love every day; sweep the tasks that engross, also in the rush of domestic and kindness cares, of society and civics, be alive to every husband or wife the best that is in us. Take time for the nurture of that love which is the bread of life, lest we lose it, and be partner to its destruction is one's motto.

Those Old-Fashioned Grandmother Days



O, where are those old-fashioned grandmother ways,
Those old-fashioned, easy-chair grandmother days;
Those caps and those slippers, the spectacles, too;
Those winsome old grandmother ways that we knew?

The needles and knitting we all knew so well,
Those old-fashioned stories she often would tell?
In fancy we revelled with giants of old
And marvelled at feats so courageous and bold.

We rode with the fairies in shimmering gowns,
We flew on a broomstick up over the towns
With funny old women; and many a time
With "Jack" up the "bean stalk" we'd daringly climb.

Her rocking-chair stood in its time-honored place;
And the years have gone by time ne'er can efface
That sweet retrospection of days long ago,
Of old-fashioned grandmother days that we know.

Those old-fashioned remedies grandmother knew
Those syrups and teas that she knew how to brew
Are gone and forgotten; and now, for each ache
The doctor is called and prescribes what we take.

The grandmothers now are too busy, it seems,
To tell fairy stories or woo baby dreams
By old-fashioned crooning or tremulous lay,
Which lulled us to dreamland when tired of play.

The twentieth century grandmother's time
Seems given quite largely to problems sublime;
Or clubs, or society, pink teas and such;
You won't find her singing to babies—not much!

She much prefers "Nannie," or some such a name,
The very word "grandmother" seems to proclaim
The fact that she's old, which, of course, is the truth;
She tries to appear simply bubbling with youth.

So here's to the grandmothers, such as we knew,
Gray haired and wrinkled, gentle and true;
Who knitted and dozed in the firelight's glow,
In those old-fashioned grandmother days long ago.

"I was still wondering," said the young man on the train. "You never can tell, you know. Now, there's Albert Bunlit. You know Albert—"

"I did know Albert," replied the other young man. "Before we were married, two years ago. I knew him much of him since."

"Of course not," said the young man on the table. "He's married. Well, I know him two years ago the end of all the bluff and wordy, noise for nonsense sort of chaps, he was the most pronounced.

"Nobody else could have himself think when Albert was in a crowd, because he always had so much to say. And he said it, too. I'd like to see many men who could have stood him for two years. He was so everything going as he generally, he knew them as much as Moses waiting for the ones, and I don't care whether they were of them liked it or not! That was Albert!"

"Well, I think what he was all right," agreed the other young man. "I have been surprised that his wife has tolerated him so long."

The young man on the train nearby felt his self in his emotion. "I am sure you truly mean," he said. "Albert and his wife and I all happened to be at the Joneses

"Now that he called I want to come to see you and Mr. Jones, he was crazy when he found we were coming here—but he is indeed most getting started. Albert, did you use some cough medicine before you left? You're no idea how careless he is, Mrs. Jones! Almost everything, too! Now, one day I particularly told him I needed only a spool and a quarter more of thread, and did he do but get a yard and a half—and it is one of my rules never to make useless purchases. Is it wasting money away?

"What did I do? Why, I just made him return the yard and a half the next day and go in later and get what I had told him in the first place! It was the easy way, to make him remember next time.

"He's pretty good about doing my shopping errands for me—it's right on his way to the office, and there's no reason in my bothering to go down the car—all the several times a day myself till I saw plainly there was nothing for it but to show him what he needed. He's getting to be a nuisance at a way, but I always go with him now when he buys shirts and collars and things, see that he gets things that are useful and sensible instead of three-dollar ties."

The Bohemian Adventures of Prince Florizel

By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Story of the Physician and the Saratoga Trunk. In Six Instalments.

Synopsis

The adventures of Prince Florizel of Bohemia and his mentor, Colonel Geraldine, are detailed in these stories.

Between them they break up the Suicide Club, and the fate they mete out to the president of it is that he shall fight a duel with Colonel Geraldine's younger brother.

The president of the club and Geraldine's brother set out for the Continent and here the Prince and his retinue of three followed. They attended a masked ball in the Latin Quarter, where Geraldine's brother is having his fun.

Another of the guests is Miss Q. Scallions, an American, whose curiosity and love of comedy were too fine to escape the watchful eye of the astute Mme. Zedronie, who lives in the adjoining room at his hotel, and lures to him in the course of the evening a fellow countryman, who is known only by himself as a Banker, and a prize at the ball. He also overhears the plans the Prince is making to Geraldine about his brother's friend.

Scandalmonger meets a woman at the ball and makes an engagement to see her the next evening at 11:30.

"I BELIEVE you are already failing to treat me as a master," she cried, tapping him with her fan upon the arm. "Patience, patience—that should come in time. A woman loves to be obeyed at first, although afterward she finds her pleasure in obeying.

"Do as I ask you, for heaven's sake, or I will answer for nothing. Indeed, I will! I think of it," she smiled, with the manner of one who had just seen further into a difficulty, "I find a better plan of keeping importunate visitors away. Tell the porter to admit no one for you, except a person who may come that night to claim a debt; and speak with some feeling, so that he may take your words in earnest."

"I think you may trust me to protect myself against intruders," he said, not with at a little pique.

"That is how I should prefer the thing arranged," she answered, coldly. "I know you mean; you think nothing of a woman's reputation."

Silas blushed and somewhat hung his head; for the scheme he had in view had involved a little eavesdropping before his acquaintances.

"Don't Speak to the Porter"

"Above all," she added, "do not speak to the porter as you come out."

"And why?" said he. "Of all your instructions, that seems to me the least important."

"You put first doubted the wisdom of some of the others, which you now see to be very necessary," she replied. "Remember me, this also has its use, in case you will see them; and what am I to think of your affection, if you refuse me such trifles at our first interview?"

Silas confounded himself in explanations and apologies; in the middle of them the hour struck on the clock and cupped her hands together with a suppressed scream.

"Heavens!" she cried, "it is late! I have not an instant to lose. Alas, we poor women, what slaves we are! What have I not risked for you already?

And after repeating her directions, which she carefully combined with caresses and the most abandoned confidence, she hurried away and disappeared among the crowd.

The whole of the next day Silas was filled with a sense of great importance; he was now sure she was a countess; and when evening came he minutely obeyed her orders and was at the corner of the Luxembourg Gardens by the hour appointed. No one was there.

He waited nearly half an hour, looking in the face of every one who passed or loitered near the spot; he even visited the the same thing heathenest by a dozen neighboring corners of the boulevard and made a complete circuit of the garden rail in vain; but there was no beautiful countess to throw herself into his arms.

At last, and most reluctantly, he began to retrace his steps toward his hotel. On the way he remembered the words he had just passed between Madame Zephyrine and her own son. "Is there no blood young man, and they gave him an indefinite unrestless.

"If appears," he reflected, "that every one has to tell lies to our porter."

He rang the bell, the door opened before him, and the porter in his bedclothes came to offer him a light.

"Has he gone?" inquired the porter.

"He? Whom do you mean?" asked Silas, somewhat sharply, for he was irritated by his disappointment.

"I did not notice him go out," continued the porter, "but I trust you told him that we do not care, in this house, to have lodgers who cannot meet their liabilities."

"What the devil do you mean?" demanded Silas, rudely. "I cannot understand a word of this farrago."

"The short blond man who came for his debt," returned the other. "Him it is I mean. Who else should it be, when I had your orders to admit no one else?"

"Why, good God, of course he never came," retorted Silas.

"I believe what I believe," retorted the porter putting his tongue into his cheek with a most roguish air.

"You are an insolent scoundrel," cried Silas, and, feeling that he had made a ridiculous exhibition of asperity, and at sound of breathing. Once more, with heart of lead, pushed the door slowly open, great effort, he reached out the end of his finger to the spot he had already touched, but this time the finger met a half a yard of air. Stood shivering and fixed with terror. There was something in his bed. What it was he knew not, but there was something there.

It was some seconds before he could move. Then, guided by an instinct, he fell straight upon the matches and keeping his back toward the bed, lighted a candle. As soon as the flame had kindled he turned slowly around and looked for what he feared to see.

Sure enough, there was the worst of his imagination realized. The coverlid was drawn carefully up over the pillow, but it showed the outline of a human body lifted motionless, and when he dashed forward and flung aside the sheets he beheld the dead young man, whom he had seen in the hotel only this night before, his eyes open and without speculation, his face swollen and blackened, and a thin stream of blood trickling from his forehead.

Silas uttered a long, tremulous wail, dropped the candle and fell on his knees beside the bed.

Silas was awakened from the stupor into which his terrible discovery had plunged him, by a prolonged but discreet tapping at the door. It took him some seconds to remember his position; and when he hastened to prevent any one from entering it was already too late. For, Soul, in a night cap, carrying a lamp which lighted up his long white countenance, sidling to his gait, and peering and cocking his head like some

The Office Boy's Girl

"SAY," the youngest office boy remarked to the stenographer, "I seen him out with his gull last night."

The youngest office boy poked a grimy finger in the direction of the oldest office boy, who, overcome with embarrassment and joy, undulated like an angleworm.

"Him?" ejaculated the stenographer. "Well, now, what do you know about that? He ain't really got a girl, then, has he?"

"There," said the youngest office boy, "I seen the two of 'em goin' along like this."

He attempted to illustrate by taking the arm of the oldest office boy in an affectionate, if soiled, grip, but was promptly slammed against the wall.

He turned back to the stenographer, who was playing with a pencil, and remarked: "I left it in my ole clothes. I'll bring it downstairs and show it to you to-morrow."

"I'm just dyin' to see it," confessed the stenographer. "What's the name of her?"

"Mine," said the office boy. "Mine Flinkowski. We're goin' to a dance day after to-morrow night," he went on. "Say, she's a peach, she is, but she's got something the matter with her heart, solo she can't dance a awful lot. Just two, four dances in a evening."

"And little Willie gets them?"

"Uh-huh," said the office boy.

"And do you and her just sit round the rest of the time?" asked the youngest office boy with delicate humor.

"Me sit round nothin'," exclaimed the oldest office boy. "Not for mine. I dance

Day's Best Story

PROF. BRANDER MATTHEWS, speaking jubilantly of his son, says that he trusts he is not yet so old that the students can play the trick on him he once saw turned on a senior professor in his own college days.

"Professor Blank was our most venerable instructor in three days, and he could be just a little irritable at times. On one occasion, noticing that one member of the class who sat right under his desk never took any notes nor paid the slightest attention to his lectures, he stopped the class abruptly and demanded:

"'See here, young man, what do you mean by coming into my class room day after day and never taking any notes?'

"'I have my father's,' was the composure reply."

There has been no appreciable in the stock market unless it be an intermission of concentrated pressure. The history where it might be expected to last several days without important changes, but the undertone is easy.

It looks very like a lull in the big people in State street were getting themselves in position to be controlled by both Democrats and Republicans if the big market control will not be disappointment to a great many. Chairman Taft's statement that the market has advanced.

As a rule, when the market is dull and lower it is exceedingly strong, as those who have ever dealt in such circumstances can testify. Any idea that the bull forces will be prone to get out of their commitments. They also report when it may be needed and when a disinclination to push their following gave no bidding for stocks.

An important transfer of loans abroad is to be noted during the week, according to rumors now current in financial and banking circles, and that will affect conditions here. For this reason the showing of the banks on Saturday ought to be regarded to a degree. This is one reason why a further bull demonstration is looked for.

Boston & Maine common stock finds a new low record for the year at 123½, a decline of 30¾ from the high mark of the current year. With the exception of the year 1908 when the stock sold at 114, that issue has not been seen new lows when a low mark of 110 was reached.

In view of the fact that the loans for the big interests are still available, it is very improbable that there will be any marked activity in the copper shares in the immediate future. As the time of the organizers of the merger are to take in the properties at a certain value of the issues it is quite impossible at this time to figure how large the stock market will give the stocks of the combination to.

The foreign sales of the International Harvester Company are such that they will reach the largest total ever recorded. From present indications, the foreign business of the company will be about twice as large or over at the time of December. Most of the new stock of the International Harvester Company are now controlled in Europe, and the business is expected to from time to time as the foreign business increases.

Two things will happen in the copper industry near future which should help to make Lobby Valve shares look more favorable than ever before. The stock will be listed on the Boston Stock Exchange and will be largely increased. The opening sale is expected to be at 50, which would reflect fully the company's stock possessions. The world part of the copper trade. When the Street found out about the big deal, it commenced to evince the rise to purchase the issues and the public to the business, the popular assumption being that some valuable rights have been given to stockholders. As the dividend is to be increased and the stock listed. Perhaps there were the developments which new interests discussions, and perhaps there will be the unfold of for distribution of the stock.

During the months of October two big companies which operate in the Los Angeles and San Francisco districts, Chanslor, paid dividends aggregating $324,480 and the united total of dividend out made $1,296,000. All but $7,587,291 has represented earnings from California properties.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Although there was no special weakness displayed in any one stock the stock market opened irregular to-day with prices in general slightly under the close of yesterday. During the first fifteen minutes of trading there was an inclination on the part of some stocks to move upward, but later a general loss of weakness developed and stocks began to drop, losses of from ¼ to ¾ and in some instances of ⅝ being scored.

St. Paul, during the early trading, scored an advance of ¾ of a point. Steel, Tennessee was heavy during the early trading, opening at a loss of ⅝. Reading was another of the railroad stocks to quote an early loss. Sound fractional losses were sustained in the group of specialties. Later the market again displayed better tone, but prices were not materially changed. Trading on the Curb was quiet and irregular.

American exchanges were unchanged in London, due to the presidential election in the English political situation.

AMERICAN WANT "ADS" BRING QUICK RESULTS

ENTER AMERICAN CONTEST TO-DAY

The Educational Contest is taking hold in great shape.

This fact is made clear by the large number of new enrolments received by the Contest Director to-day.

Many of the boys and girls scattered throughout New England have neglected to send in their enrolments because they were afraid it was too late. But these same boys and girls are now realizing that any one under eighteen years of age can enter this contest at any time.

Enrolments are coming in thick and fast. The more the merrier! The BOSTON AMERICAN would like to have every boy and girl in New England compete for the $2,000 in cash prizes which it has offered.

The educational advantages of this contest are many. The mental exercise will be of great benefit to all who partake in this great opportunity.

Don't forget that the first prize is $500 in cash. Are YOU working for this $500 in cash?

If you have not already done so, clip out the ENROLMENT blank which you will find in to-day's AMERICAN, and send it in at once to the Educational Contest Director. Then glance the AMERICAN over in search of your entrance into the contest, and all you have to do then, is to try to get the back numbers from your newsdealer. These back numbers contain the pictures which have been printed up to date. If he cannot supply you, write to the Educational Contest Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, and he will send you at once the pictures which have been published since the opening day of the contest.

Look for the ENROLMENT blank in to-day's AMERICAN. Clip this out and send in to-day.

The Educational Contest Director has received about twenty-five letters to-day which were not signed, and had no names or addresses on them. It will be impossible to send the catalogue unless correct names and addresses are given. Contestants who neglected to sign their letters please send in their correct addresses at once.

The following incomplete addresses were received to-day: Irene Hunt, ——; Bailey court; N. E. Chaplain, No. 10 Kincaide street; Charles Hoben, ——, Central square; Ruth E. M. Sawyer, Beede Playfairy, No. 9 Quarry street; Ralph R. J. Patterson, Linden Pumes, dentist, Trade C. Rines, ——; Ruth Mae Pike, Sara Fleming, Ralph Dwyer, Harold F. Moore, Phyllis Ralph Thomas, Theodore Barnekov, Gladys Strube, Manuel Rovner, Francis G. Power, Paul S. Crooker, Rolland Evans, Lena Lewis, Joseph Joseph Keller, Helen Peterson, Emma Rondo.

It isn't what you pay for advertising; it's what advertising pays you. Advertising that pays is the only cheap advertising; advertising that doesn't pay is dear at any price. Advertising in the AMERICAN pays best, therefore it is the cheapest.

LOST AND FOUND

Shopping has its setback in the course of each day's life, the same as anything else. But perhaps the most unpleasant feature is to discover the loss of your shopping bag. Sometimes a small purchase, together with your purse—an accident in most everyone's life. Should you lose anything, like little ad under this heading, and let the American help you find it. You'll be surprised how quickly it will be returned.

Fight by Foss to Retire Lodge Goes Straight to the People

Governor-elect Foss could render no greater service to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts than the one outlined by him to go into every corner of the State and tell the people why Senator Henry Cabot Lodge should not be permitted longer to misrepresent them in the United States Senate.

By doing this Mr. Foss will arouse the voters as they have never been aroused before.

When the conscience of Massachusetts is thoroughly reawakened. it is pretty safe to say that the Republican legislators will stop, look and listen before they permit Lodge, or his buccaneers, to bulldoze them into voting against the wishes of the people, as expressed at the polls in November.

It is a brave, courageous and daring undertaking by Mr. Foss. Such a campaign has never before been made in any State. It means that Lodge will have to fight every inch of the way. It means, as Foss says, that Lodge, nor any other candidate, shall not be permitted to steal the Senatorship.

It means, as Foss says, that he is going to take the matter straight to THE PEOPLE. He wants them to decide. It is not an attempt on Foss's part to dictate. He is not booming any candidate. He is going to tell THE PEOPLE just what sort of a man Lodge is, and THEY, THE PEOPLE, can make their choice by deciding for or against Lodge If THE PEOPLE want Lodge they can have him. If they DON'T WANT Lodge they can have some other Republican or a good honest PROGRESSIVE DEMOCRAT.

Lodge is now conducting from the Hotel Touraine in this city a campaign of gum-shoe methods as low and vile as any political hanger-on in a levee district could imagine.

It is a disgrace to the State and a disgrace to Lodge.

And while on this subject it might be well to reprint from a letter in the Boston Globe of Friday last something that has been overlooked by those worthy citizens who unctuously speak of Lodge as a "high-toned gentleman" and a "scholar in politics." Here is the extract:

"The Oxford University Press is now publishing the most elaborate and voluminous dictionary ever attempted. The work was commenced as long ago as 1879. Two or three volumes have already been issued, and the title page of the first volume reads as follows:

"'A New English Dictionary on Historical Principals, Founded Mainly Upon Materials Collected by the Philological Society. Edited by James A. H. Murray, B. A., M. A., LL. D., D. C. L., etc., etc., Sometime President of the Philological Society, with the Assistance of Many Scholars and Men of Science. Oxford University Press, London, Amen Corner, E. C.'

"The first volume contains 1,240 pages and covers the letters A and B. On page 680 is the word 'barrel' and the fourth definition given is as follows:

"'In U. S. political slang: money used for a political campaign, esp. for corrupt purposes.'

"'1884 Boston (Mass.) Herald, 18 Sept., "There is plenty of evidence that the head of Mr. Lodge's barrel has already been knocked in."'"

If there was plenty of evidence in 1884 that the head of Mr. Lodge's "barrel" had already been knocked in, there is even more evidence of the same thing to-day.

This new English Dictionary on Historical Principals declares that a "barrel" means "money used for a political campaign, especially for corrupt purposes."

It might help Mr. Lodge and his friends if they would read carefully the testimony in the case of Senator Lorimer of Illinois, who was dragged by the back of the neck from Washington to Chicago and there in a Court of Law exposed for his participation in the purchase of votes that made him United States Senator from Illinois.

Would Mr. Lodge care to have the same sort of thing happen in Massachusetts? Would he not better retire now with whatever little reputation he has, without, as Governor Foss says, trying "to steal" the great office of United States Senator?

There are rumors also that certain Democratic members of the General Court are in a "receptive mood" and will vote for Lodge "when the time comes."

Whatever plans any corrupt Democrats may have had to cast their votes for Lodge have been upset by the action of Mr. Foss.

It is not at all likely that even one Democrat will dare to stand up and cast his ballot for Lodge.

It would be political suicide. It would mean that the man so voting had been paid for his vote. It would mean that the man who has received money for his vote would end his days in prison.

Several Democrats have announced themselves as candidates to succeed Lodge. Among these are James H. Vahey, well and favorably known in the State, Congressman O'Connell and Col. William A. Gaston.

The question is not whether Mr. Vahey or Mr. O'Connell or Mr. Gaston can be elected.

The important thing is to name a Democrat, progressive in ideas, with every fibre in his body honest and whose sole desire is to work for the people of this great State.

Who is the fittest Democrat?

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

PRAISES TRAINMEN

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

While reading the BOSTON AMERICAN the other evening, I came across an item called "Letters from AMERICAN Readers," one of the letters was entitled Civility, written by G. Ho. S. of Young's Hotel. I read this with great interest, as I being a rider on the Narrow Gauge. The statements may be correct, but I think the parties asking such questions must be of show ignorance. Many passengers riding on the Narrow Gauge, ask the trainmen, "Is this the long or short way to Winthrop." Trainmen are not required, or are not educated to that extent to read minds of people, to know what station they wish to go to, therefore they cannot answer them. Ignorance from passengers shows itself many times during the departure of trains, for instance: A passenger in East Boston station asked "if it is the Revere Beach ferry." Another passenger on the train, being occupied in some other way, rides by the station they wish to get off, and then says the trainmen didn't call out the station, or the trainmen ought to know where they ought to get off. A lady asked a trainman one time if the tracks were the same width all the way around the Winthrop branch. A man asked if this was the 3:15 train for Winthrop, and what time it left. A trainman has lots to put up with dealing with the public. I ride on the Narrow Gauge every day, and have not seen or heard any incivility of any trainmen or heard of any. President M. O. Adams, to my estimation, selects excellent trainmen for his employ.

WHAT LIFE SHOULD MEAN TO US

Written for the Boston American

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

"It is a great thing to live." Yes, it may be; it depends, though. If one means by it being born, existing, dying and being buried, that is one thing, and not very serious at that—rather meaningless on the whole. If, on the contrary, it means standing for something, filling some niche that would otherwise go empty, serving some purpose that otherwise would not be so well cared for, then living becomes exceedingly serious and very full of meaning, running over with it.

The old idea of destiny, which, however, the theologians call by another name, is not very wide of the mark. There are apt to be at least two or three people in every century that everyone is ready enough to say came into the world for a particular object. We say of Washington that he was a man for the crisis. Abraham Lincoln was another man for the crisis which came in the sixties. If Washington and Lincoln, why not Jefferson and Garfield, and so on down to lesser lights? And where shall one draw the line?

Why not the whole figure and assume that every one, big or little, comes into the world in the face of some crisis, big or little, some niche, large or minute, which, if he do not fill, he is a failure, and better have been still born, or not conceived at all? Responsibility is not scattered all around. Every man who has a mind will have an opinion. It will not be like any one's else opinion exactly, that is if it is his own opinion.

All More or Less Heretics in These Days

The only ones who think alike are those who do not think at all, but let someone think for them. The only people who live perfectly still are dead people. And, if one's opinion is not exactly like anyone's else, all the more reason why he should speak it out. Duplicates are not so valuable. It is the original that counts. There is much to be said for people whose ideas strike off on a tangent, what men call heretics, people that in the hard old days used to be stretched and roasted.

Every man is more or less a heretic when he thinks his own thoughts and not those of some other. In that sense, conscientious heresy is better than the habit of being orthodox. That gives opportunity for a word in behalf of "insurgents."

Insurgency is another name for political heresy. The "stand-patters," on the contrary, are not guilty of thinking, but float on the current of political tradition and do what they can to hinge the heretics in the fires of political inquisition.

Insurgency in the end always wins out. Heresy is the yeast inside of the several orthodoxy as is what the new oak is built up from. It is for each man, then, to be a Washington or a Gladstone to do thinking of his own, to speak it out, and give the world the benefit of it.

What Teaching the Child Really Means

SINCE there is nothing that is more natural to a child than to ask questions and to want to know things, it is passing strange that teachers find it such hard work to interest children. His mind is full of appetite. He brings that appetite into the world with him, and in no way do the ordinary run of teachers more distinctly betray their incompetency than by shaping their instructions in a way to quench that appetite.

There is more to a child's mind, even before he has learned anything than he has credit given him for. The young brain is not an empty box into which it is the teacher's duty to dump information. On the contrary, it is an instrument full of little responsive cords, and the teacher can't teach unless he or she knows how to play upon those cords in a way to elicit music from them.

The "dullness," so-called, of the normal child is simply the reflection of the teacher's incompetency. There is nothing that the rising generation needs so much as it does teachers of both sexes that know how to find their way to the young intellect and heart.

Something can be learned from the way in which a gardener treats his flower seedlings. First of all, he believes in the seed. Is certain there is that in it which is bound to come to something if rightly dealt with. He knows that in a rose seed there is already the beginning of a rose bush with its first having to put it there. Another thing that the gardener knows is that different kinds of seeds cannot be treated as though they were all of the same kind, even as a musician is aware that he cannot get music out of a piano in the same way that he does out of a flute or violin.

Schools For the Children, Not For the Teachers

A baker can put the same stamp on all the crackers he takes out of his ovens, but teachers cannot stamp all their pupils alike. They are different from one another when he starts with them, and they ought to be still more different from one another when he is through with them. The first thing a teacher needs to know is not how to spell, or to "bound the States" in the American Union, or to repeat the multiplication table, but how to read character, how to interpret dispositions, to detect individual aptitudes and to discover in each pupil the methods of its intellectual machinery.

It would be interesting to know how much the members of the Board of Education think about these matters, and to what extent those members are selected with reference to their knowledge and acquaintance with the fundamentals of primary education.

One other point to be mentioned is this—that a teacher's efforts to make instruction interesting to the average pupil is always the teacher's incompetency. The pupils' parents ought not to put upon their children the entire blame for the lack of interest and of progress, but ought to bring their complaints to the teachers and to those by whom the teachers are elected to so responsible a position.

Parents help pay the teachers' salaries, and if the service proper to be rendered by them is not rendered—and it is not if it leaves the children uninterested and senseful—the parents ought to be heard from.

Schools are for the children, the homes and the country, not for the teachers nor for the commissioners of education.

"Don't Forget to Drop a Line to Mother"

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

DEAR MOTHER—As I write you I am lying on a cot,
My form is full of torture; I would sooner die than not.
I'm just a scrub, dear mother, but I line up every day
And try to be a hero till they send me to the bay.
My nose is somewhere in my skull, my teeth are on the field;
I have an ear, just one that's here, and my wig is pealed.
Still, 'tis for Alma Mater that I've fought this awful duel;
Please send me fifty, mother, for the doctor's getting cruel.

DEAR MA—I have your letter. You inclosed a measly ten;
How far will that much take me when I have to live with m
I'm playing with the football scrubs, I'm working like a slave;
Another week without more funds will see me in my grave.
I spent six bones for arnica, I owe four bones for gin;
Why stint your boy who's seeking joy? What is an X to you?
Please wire me fifty, won't you? I know you won't be sore;
I love my Alma Mater, but I love my mother more.

MOTHER—I can't believe it! Not another tiny cent?
This to the boy you said might some day be a President!
You sent me here to college, and you told me when I came
That I should study long and hard, that I should make a name.
I lie upon a cot of pain, nursing my ruined nose;
My good right hand is shattered—I am writing with my toes;
I cannot stay in college now, my football days are done.
Wire me enough to get back home. I am your loving son.

The Red Corpuscle

By WEX JONES

In response to the popular demand for red-blooded fiction, and lots of it, the publishers have decided to issue The Red Corpuscle twice a day. Each issue will contain one red-blooded Western story, one red-blooded detective story, one red-blooded love story, one red-blooded sea story, one red-blooded Northern story, one red-blooded New England story, one red-blooded business story, one red-blooded humorous story. No wearisome descriptions. No sermons. Action, action, action, and red blood. Just number out to-day.

"To action," they cry. A man jumped over my garden wall and sprawled across my early sweet onions. "Hi, you!" I shouted. [The editors say I am too long. They point out that "Hi!" would be the man's street address and they din have been a sufficient address and they din have been a sufficient address and they din have been a sufficient
